AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

Early in 1894 the compiler became interested in the history of his own ancestry and commenced making inquiries in regard to it. During the progress of his researches there was awakened in him a desire for more extended information, and he was encouraged to continue his efforts until he had accumulated sufficient material to warrant him in publishing a "Genealogy of the Rix Family and Collateral."

From the experience thus gained he had acquired such a fondness for genealogical research that it became to him an almost irresistible fascination, and in consequence he was impelled to continue the pursuit in the collateral branches of the family. He was especially prompted to do this from the recollections of his dear old grandmother, and the many good things received from her in his childhood; her constant solicitude for the happiness of others, which led her to minister to their necessities; and her abiding faith in the Divine Master, all tending to make the desire greater to honor her memory, and to ascertain from whom her noble qualities were inherited, and also to perpetuate the same in some permanent form by publishing the history of her ancestry.

Mistakes will undoubtedly be found in the volume, but they exist, not for want of painstaking efforts to avoid them, but generally from imperfect manuscripts and contradictory statements sent by members of the same family. Many persons would be surprised to see the errors in their own letters, which are frequently the result, not of ignorance, but of carelessness. What is worth recording at all is worth recording carefully and correctly. I should esteem it a favor when mistakes are discovered to have the corrections sent to me.

The method of this work is that which is recommended by the New England Historic Genealogical Society, in an important sense the foster-mother of almost every New England genealogy.

The author is under obligations to all who have furnished records, who are many, but he feels under especial obligations to Mr. Sumner Kimball, of Lovell, Me.; Mr. Enos Eastman, of Plymouth, Wis.; Miss Mildred Eastman, of Kearsarge, N. H.; and to Mr. George P. Eastman, of Milbury, Mass., who turned over to him all the old records gathered by his grandfather, Rev. Lucius Eastman, who spent years on the work, and who published a pamphlet of about ten pages of the first four generations of the family.

The abbreviations used in this work are but few and will be readily understood. The marginal numbers indicate that a further record is given, which will be found further along in the book.

It is the earnest hope of the author that the result of his labors may impart to others the same gratification it has afforded him in its preparation, and he will be pleased to receive any additional material, which will be carefully preserved and deposited with the New Hampshire Historical Society, at Concord, N. H., where future genealogists of the family can obtain it, should it be thought advisable years hence to publish another edition.

INTRODUCTION.

Genealogy has been defined as "an account or history of the descent of a person or family from an ancestor; the enumeration of ancestors and their children in natural order of succession."

But it is sometimes asked, "Of what use is it?" The question might with almost equal propriety be asked concerning the kindred sciences of history and biography, for if there is utility in preserving a record of events, or of the life and character of individuals, then science which embraces, as it is now understood and practiced, in a considerable degree both these features, must also be interesting and profitable.

Our ancestors, the early founders of New England, were a reverent, conscientious and industrious people, and a consideration of their lives, their hardships and their achievements, cannot fail of proving salutary. It is both a natural and honorable ambition on the part of any man to have his genealogy traced, but unfortunately there are some who cannot see the necessity or desirableness of having their pedigrees ascertained, or of preserving any papers or documents bearing upon them, that they may have their descent defined and arranged in authentic genealogical order. Most people appear content with mere traditionary details of their lineage, without being at the pains to authenticate them by reference to proper records or regular genealogical authorities. And to show the apathy some have, the author will state that he has repeatedly sent self-addressed stamped envelopes for information, and to this day no reply has been received.

But he will say in addition, and to their credit, that the Eastmans, as a general thing, have taken a good deal of interest in the work.

There is a satisfaction to most persons in being able to trace their lineage to remote ancestors; in knowing where they lived, and what scenes and hardships, prosperity and adversity, they passed through, and in recollecting what benefits they conferred on their posterity.

As nothing is certainly known of Roger Eastman previous to his emigrating to this country, his settling at Salisbury seems a suitable epoch from which to commence an account of his family and descendants. Roger Eastman and the first settlers in Salisbury and adjoining towns were Puritans, and under the tyranny of the Tudors and Stuarts, many left their native country to enjoy civil and religious liberty. They did not come here to accumulate property, to live in ease and splendor, or acquire fame. They had vastly higher and holier views and aims, to obey God and prepare themselves for heaven.

These sons of the forest had sound hearts, firm in their resolutions, and persevering effort. Their faith in God never failed. They kept constantly in view the grand design of their coming to this wilderness.

To the Puritans are we indebted for our civil liberty and free institutions, as well as for our religious privileges.

It might under other circumstances seem unbecoming in us to speak of the virtues of the descendants of our ancestors, but in a history of the family it would seem strange if we did not find some who rose to eminence. We find more of the name who were college graduates than any other. Many have been ministers, lawyers, members of congress and many have held other public positions. Many have been mechanics, inventors and farmers.

HISTORY AND GENEALOGY

OF THE

EASTMAN FAMILY IN AMERICA.

The farthest back found of the Eastmans is of John Eastman, of Romsey, county Southampton, will dated September 24, 1602, proved October 22, 1602, to be buried in church of Romsey :

To son Roger Eastman all lands whatsoever in default to son John, also to Roger, 100 marks at 14, to be paid by my father Roger Eastman, to my son John 50 pounds at 14, to daughter Elizabeth and Margaret when 21 or married 40 pounds each. Ditto to child my wife now goith with, to servant Elizabeth Head 5 pounds. Residuary legate and executrix, wife Anne ; overseers, Roger Eastman, Michael Mackeall and Mathew Mundsy.

Thomas Stote.

The first one of the name in America was Roger Eastman¹, born in Wales, England, in 1611, and died in Salisbury, Mass¹, December 16, 1694 ; married Sarah Smith (?), born in 1621, and died in Salisbury, Mass., March 11, 1697. They were both members of the church in Salisbury in 1694.

Roger Eastman came from Langford, county of Wilts, and sailed from Southampton in April, 1638, in the ship Confidence, John Jobson, master, bound for Massachusetts Bay Colony.

On the ship's papers he was entered as a servant of John Saunders. It is believed that on account of the emigration laws, or for political reasons, his real rank was higher than appears.

Many traditions have been handed down, but it is believed that Roger Eastman was the sole ancestor of all the Eastmans in this country. The name has been, in some cases, spelled "Easman," even by members of the same family. No record of his marriage has been found or of his wife's full name, and it is only by tradition that we suppose it to be "Smith." Roger Eastman received lands in the first division in Salisbury, in 1640-3. His minister's tax in 1650 was 8s. 3d.

From Salisbury the tribe dispersed, but the major part settled in the southern towns of New Hampshire and the northern towns of Massachusetts.

The third generation, however, settled farther north, following up the Merrimack river, while others settled further south in Massachusetts and Connecticut and others in Maine. From these places they scattered over the United States and Canada.

4. Philip Eastman² (Roger¹), born in Salisbury, Mass., Oct. 20, 1644; married 1st, a woman whose name is unknown, by whom he had one daughter. He married 2d, Aug. 22, 1678, Mary Morse, born Sept. 22, 1645, widow of Anthony Morse and daughter of Thomas Barnard and Elenor, his wife, both of Newburyport, Mass. He married 3d, Margaret ———. Mr. Eastman first lived in Haverhill, Mass., but his house being burned by the Indians, March 15, 1697, and some of his family captured and others dispersed, and himself captured at same time, he finally, after his escape soon after, concluded to settle in Connecticut, where his son Philip had preceded him.

A full record of his family has never been found. On the town record of Woodstock, Conn., where he settled, mention is made of Philip Eastman as being represented by his heirs in the distribution of lands as laid out among the proprietors in 1715; mention is also made of his buying a piece of land in Ashford, a town adjoining Woodstock. Mr. Eastman was a soldier in King Philip's war. He died before 1714.

5. Thomas Eastman² (Roger¹), born in Salisbury, Mass., Sept. 11, 1646; killed by Indians in Haverhill, Mass., April 29, 1688; married Jan. 20, 1679, in Haverhill, Deborah Corlis, born in Haverhill, Mass., June 6, 1655, daughter of George and Joannah (Davis) Corlis. After her husband's death she married 2d, June 29, 1691, Thomas Kingsley. Mr. Eastman lived in Haverhill previous to 1675. He took the oath of allegiance in 1675. His estate was administered upon in 1688, and his brother John was appointed guardian of his only son, Jonathan, and of his mother, Deborah, who was then in captivity. Thomas Eastman was a soldier in King Philip's war in 1675-6. Mary Corlis, Deborah's oldest sister, married William Neff, Jan. 23, 1665, who went after the army, and died in Rhode Island in February, 1688-9. Mary was taken prisoner with Hannah Dustin, March 15, 1697, and shared in her trials. Mrs. Neff had been a widow nine years at the time of her capture, and remained so till her death, which occurred Oct. 22, 1722.

7. Joseph Eastman² (Roger¹), born in Salisbury, Mass., Nov. 8, 1650; died April 4, 1692; married Mary Tilton, born Feb. 8, 1649. She was the daughter of Hon. Peter Tilton, of Hadley, Mass. After Joseph's death his widow married Joseph Guernsey, with whom it is said she quarrelled. They removed to New Jersey. It is very likely she took her children with her. Joseph settled in Hadley, and probably did so on his marriage. There is a record of a Joseph Eastman, who was a soldier in King Philip's war, and as no other Joseph Eastman was old enough to be a soldier in that war, this Joseph must be the one.

15. Thomas Eastman³ (John², Roger¹), born in 1691; married in Concord, N. H., by Rev. Timothy Walker, Nov. 25, 17—, Eunice Chase. When Eunice was a girl, she was gathering berries on a hill on the east side of the Merrimack river in Concord, when she discovered a young fawn asleep under the shade of some bushes. Taking off her apron, she threw it over the fawn, and clasping it in her arms, carried it home. She sold it to Andrew Mc'Milan for six pounds of sheep's wool. Mr. Eastman lived first in Concord, N. H. Removed to Hopkinton about 1758.

CHILDREN.

- i. Collins⁴, b——. He enlisted April 23, 1775, in Capt. Isaac Baldwin's company, Col. John Stark's regiment, as a private; time of service, 3 months and 16 days. He was in the battle of Bunker Hill, where his captain was killed. There is a tradition that Collins was killed or died in the war, but it is not at all likely, because he was discharged at the time his company was. He died soon after his discharge, as the following shows:

"To the paymaster of New Hampshire.

"DEAR SIR: Please pay to Capt. Stephen Hereman, the wages and Coat money that is due to Mr. Collins Eastman, and you will oblige me.

20. Susannah Eastman³ (Philip², Roger¹), born about 1673, in Salisbury, Mass.; died in Stonington, Conn., Dec. 20, 1772, in her 100th year. She married 1st, in Haverhill, Mass., Thomas Wood, born —; killed by Indians, March 15, 1697. She married 2d, Aug. 1, 1699, John Swan, born Aug. 1, 1668; died in Stonington, Conn., May 1, 1743. They resided in Haverhill until their third child, William, was about two years of age, when they removed to Stonington, Conn. When they removed to Stonington, William was a sturdy boy, and Susannah, wearied with much work, and carrying him in her arms, deposited the sleeping boy in an empty tub in the cellarway, telling her husband it must be put on the load of goods, while she, with Ruth behind her on the horse, went awhile on the journey, then she would take the babe in her arms. John, the eldest, ran by the ox team or was placed among the goods when tired. After a few miles on their journey, Susannah called to Capt. Swan to give her the babe, when lo and behold! he had forgotten to put the tub and child on to the load.

Smart man—that curtain lecture can be heard to-day by their descendants all down the one hundred and ninety-two years.

They retraced their steps and found “little Billie” still sleeping and started again, right this time. Susannah’s first child was killed at the same time that Thomas Wood, the husband and father, was.

22. Ebenezer Eastman³ (Philip², Roger¹), born in Haverhill, Mass., Feb. 17, 1681 ; another record says born Jan. 10, 1687. The first record is from Haverhill records, and ought to be correct. He married March 4, 1710, Sarah Peaslee (spelled by some Peasley), daughter of Col. Nathaniel and Judith (Kimball) Peasley and grandson of Dr. Joseph Peasley. The latter was born in Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 9, 1646; died Nov. 5, 1723. Dr. Joseph was the son of Joseph, the emigrant, made freeman in 1642. He settled in Haverhill before 1746, thence to Amesbury, where he died Dec. 3, 1660.

Captain Eastman was the first settler in Concord, N. H. There are many interesting facts concerning the part Mr. Eastman took in the settlement of Concord; the services he rendered, and the affairs of trust and honor committed to his charge, were many. Having considerable property, and coming, as he did, at the earliest period of the settlement of the town, with his six sons, the eldest of whom was fifteen years of age and able to do a man's work, it is no wonder that Captain Eastman became in a few years the strong man of the town.

In 1731, his house and home lot were in better order and he had more land under cultivation than any other in the settlement. From his youth he had been inured to hardships and to bold and daring enterprises. When nine years of age his father's house was destroyed by the Indians. At the age of nineteen he joined the regiment of Colonel Wainwright in the expedition against Port Royal.

In 1711, when the British fleet under Sir Howenden Walker against Canada arrived in Boston, the land forces that were to accompany the expedition were organized with great despatch, and Mr. Eastman, then about twenty-one years of age, had command of a company of infantry, which embarked, with others, on board a transport. In going up the St. Lawrence river they encountered a violent northeast storm, in which eight or nine of the vessels were lost and about 1,000 men met a watery grave. The story as related by Jonathan Eastman, a grandson of Captain Eastman, is that as night came on the orders were that all the vessels should follow the Admiral's ship, which had a large light hoisted at masthead for a signal. Captain Eastman had been somewhat acquainted with the navigation of the river, having sailed up and down before. In the night the light of the Admiral's ship was not to be seen, and it was at the time when the fleet was doubling a very dangerous and rocky point or cape. When the Admiral's fleet had fairly doubled the cape and got into line, the light appeared in such a position as to draw the line of shipping directly on to that dangerous point. Aware of the danger, Captain Eastman went to the commander, and informed him of the peril, and begged him to alter the course of the vessel; but being under the influence of liquor, this the captain positively refused to do, saying that "he would follow his Admiral if he went to h—." Captain Eastman replied, "Well, I have no notion of going there, and if you won't alter the course of the vessel, I will."

"If you do," replied the captain, "your head shall be a button for a halter in the morning."

Informing his company of the danger and relying on their support, Captain Eastman ordered the captain below and the helmsman to change his course. Thus they escaped the wrecks which befell other vessels of the fleet, by which so many lives were lost. The next morning the humble captain tendered his acknowledgments to his deliverer, and begged his friendship. On the following day the Admiral came aboard, and on seeing Captain Eastman abruptly said, "Captain Eastman, where were you when the fleet was cast away?"

"Following my Admiral, sir," replied he.

"Following your Admiral! you Yankees are a pack of praying devils. You saved yourself, but sent my men to h—!"

Among the many traditions and anecdotes that are related is one that, soon after settling in Concord, he made a journey to Haverhill on horseback, and purchased a barrel of molasses, which he intended in some way to convey home with him. He contrived what was called a car, that was formed with two shafts, one of which was fastened to the horse and the other to drag on the ground. Lashing the barrel of molasses on his car, he proceeded on his journey homeward along the path through the wilderness. He got along very well until he got to the Soucook river, when, after crossing and ascending the hill, which was very steep, he had got nearly to the top, his horse starting suddenly, the rigging gave way, and down went the barrel full speed, and was dashed to pieces against a tree. The captain, summoning all the patience at his command, exclaimed, "Oh dear, my wife will comb my hair, yes, and harrow it too!" It was truly a hard case.

Captain Eastman went to Cape Breton twice, the first time March 1, 1745, in command of a company, and was present at the reduction of Louisburg, June 16, 1745. He returned Nov. 10, 1745. Early the next year he went again, and returned home July 9, 1746. He was also a captain in Col. Sylvester Richmond's regiment, of Massachusetts, Feb. 6, 1744. Mr. Eastman lived on the "East Side," was a farmer, and was employed for many years in public affairs. He commenced a two-story house, but died before it was finished. He died July 28, 1748.

HIS WILL.

"In the name of God amen. I, Ebenezer Eastman of Rumford in the Province of New Hampshire in New England, Gent. Being of perfect mind and memory, do therefore make and ordain this my last will and testament. Imprimis. I give and bequeath unto Sarah, my well and beloved wife, all that my house and my former homestead in Haverhill in the County of Essex, and also that part of my pasture which joins the Cow Commons which I purchased of Lieut. Richard Flaggan, Dec., and also my Negro man named Cesar, and also three of my cows which she shall chuse, and a horse now in possession of my son in law Ezra Carter, and also the whole of my household goods, or as many as she sees cause to take for her improvement during her natural life, and afterwards, what she does not expend for her necessities, to be equely divided among all my children, except Joseph to have one hundred pounds old tenor, less than the rest, because I have already given him the value thereof by deed, and my exet'rs, hereafter named, viz, Ebenezer and Philip my two eldest sons and Ezra Carter, my son in law, to pay all my just debts out of my estate before the division thereof, whom I have hereby appointed to be my sole Exet'rs, of my estate.

"In confirmation of this my last will and testement, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this seventh day of March in the eighteenth year of his Majestys reign, Anno Dominic, 1744.

24. Jonathan Eastman³ (Thomas², Roger¹), born in Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 8, 1680; married April 8, 1701, Hannah Green, born on the historic Dustin Hill in Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 20, 1677.

HANNAH EASTMAN'S CAPTURE.

Haverhill, Mass., was first settled in 1640. It was the thirtieth town within the limits of the state of Massachusetts, thirty-second in the list of incorporated towns, and forty-ninth in New England list.

It was a frontier town for more than seventy years, and there were few New England towns that suffered so severely from the depredations of the Indians. Its early history is one long record of blood and misery. The early colonies suffered from six wars: first, the Pequot war; second, King Philip's war; third, King William's war; fourth, Queen Anne's war; fifth, the three years, or Lovewell's war; sixth, the second French war.

Hannah Eastman's capture occurred during Queen Anne's war, which commenced in 1703, and ended in 1713. The foes with whom the colonists contended were the Indians and Canadian French.

It would be hard for the present generation to conceive of the suffering of the inhabitants at that time. Haverhill village at this date consisted of about thirty houses, and it was rare to find a family that had not lost some of its members at the hands of the Indians. The men went armed to their daily labors, and went to church with a Bible in one hand, and loaded gun in the other. They were safe from Indian attacks nowhere; their fields, their dwellings and their churches were alike subject to their stealthy and fiendish raids.

It was really an "Age of Terror" for those hardy and courageous men. But history can show none more heroic and none that exhibit a more fearless and undaunted spirit.

At this period Jonathan Eastman and his young wife Hannah had made for themselves a home in Haverhill.

Jonathan was born in Salisbury, Mass., Jan. 8, 1680. He was the son of Thomas and Deborah (Corlis) Eastman, and grandson of Roger¹. Jonathan married April 8, 1701, Hannah Green, born Dec. 20, 1677, on the historic "Dustin Hill," in Haverhill, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth Green. Their first child, Thomas, was born March 17, 1702, and died July 20, 1703. The second child was Abigail, born Feb. 1, 1704.

The Indians seldom made their appearance before the opening of spring, and on this account less care was taken to guard against surprises during the winter months.

But as a means of defence, the selectmen had appointed six garrison and four "houses of refuge." These were either built of brick or had a single layer of brick between the outer and inner wall. They had but one outside door, often so small that a single person could enter at a time. The buildings were of two stories, with windows two and one-half feet long, and eighteen inches wide, secured inside by iron bars. The glass was extremely thick and very small, was cut in diamond shape and fastened with lead instead of putty.

There were two rooms on the lower floor, and the entrance to the chambers above was by a ladder that could be drawn up, should the lower floor be taken by the enemy.

The fireplaces were of enormous size, and wood of sled length was often burned in them. The ovens opened on the outside of the building, generally at one side, behind the fireplaces and were very large.

Late in March, 1704, Jonathan removed with his wife to the fifth garrison, which was owned and commanded by Joseph Bradley. It was situated in the northerly part of the town, and has long since been torn down and no trace of it remains.

In one of the upper chambers of this garrison, their little daughter, Abigail, was born Feb. 1, 1704.

Eight days later (Feb. 8), Jonathan left the place to attend to some necessary duties at their old home, intending to return before nightfall. Before leaving, he stopped for a moment at the bedside of his wife. He was not a demonstrative man, but he bent down and kissed her and turned away and carefully drew the covers over the dimpled hand of his tiny daughter. Mrs. Bradley was in the lower room engaged in soap boiling. He stopped only to inform her when he expected to return and passed outside.

It was a lovely day ; the air was crisp and keen, the sun shone brightly, the snow was deep upon the ground, and drifted in many places quite deep.

During the winter, the settlers had grown secure and careless of danger, and the sentries were absent from their stations and even the gates were open. Little did Jonathan think as he rode forth that he was watched by cruel eyes, far less did he think that he was never again to see his infant child, or that many weary months would pass before he again met his beloved wife.

Why the Indians allowed Jonathan to escape will never be known. His powerful frame and commanding presence may have deterred them. However, they let him pass on, and waited until between three and four o'clock in the afternoon before attacking the garrison. They then cautiously approached, and finding the way clear, rushed through the open gates before they were discovered. Jonathan Johnson, a sentinel, who was standing inside the house, shot at and wounded one of them, but the savage, infuriated by the pain, made the air ring with terrific yells as he pushed forward into the house.

With great presence of mind, Mrs. Bradley filled her ladle full of boiling soap and threw it over him. He was so severely burned that he soon died. The rest of the party rushed forward and killed Johnson, and made Mrs. Bradley and some others prisoners. Only three persons escaped from the garrison. Then they mounted the ladder and entered the room where Mrs. Eastman was alone with her child; affrighted, she sat up in bed, but the movement disturbed the child and it began to cry and she took it into her arms, pressing it to her wildly beating heart.

With a fiendish yell, the foremost savage snatched it from her clinging hands and brutally dashed it against the door-post, beating out its brains, when, with a satisfied grunt, he threw it into a corner and ordered Mrs. Eastman to arise and prepare to go with him.

The poor woman was so stunned and horrified by the shock of seeing her child murdered before her eyes, that she could not move. The savage then seized her by her long hair, and brandishing his tomahawk over her head, forced her to obey.

The party hastily collected their prisoners and plunder and commenced a hasty retreat toward Canada. The captives were separated, some going in one direction and some in another. Night was coming on, the weather was cold, and the snow was quite deep, the wind blew keenly over the hills, yet Mrs. Eastman was compelled to arise from her sick bed. Her yearning eyes were fastened upon the little heap in the corner, and her arms ached to clasp again the tiny form, but it was not allowed.

Her captors were in a hurry, forcing her down the ladder, and with threatening words and gestures compelled her to go forward in her weary march towards Canada. They took her first to Ossipee Lake, where she remained until spring, when they went on to the "Ox Bow" in Newbury, Vt. Here they planted corn and remained until it was in the second hoeing, when they were visited by another party of Indians, who probably informed them that some scouting party was in search of them, for the next day they hastily packed up and left for Canada.

Pen cannot describe the tortures endured by Mrs. Eastman during this terrible journey. Weak and weary she dragged through the long days and the longer lonely nights. Often she tried to escape, but her captors guarded her so closely that she found no opportunity. The memory of that journey to Canada remained with her through life.

It was a deep, unbroken, and seemingly inexhaustible wilderness that daily grew between her and her beloved home and friends. Pathless mountains, swollen and almost impassable rivers lay behind and before her. No friendly smoke curled from the chimney of a white inhabitant, but she sometimes saw the red flames leaping heavenward—flames kindled by her savage captors, and telling the fearful story of other wrongs. When within a few miles of their destination, Mrs. Eastman was too exhausted to go on; she was therefore left alone to spend the night in the wilderness. A kind squaw gave her a piece of punk-wood set on fire to make a smudge to ward off mosquitoes. Their poisonous bite had caused her face to swell so badly that the Indians called her "Fat Hannah." The next morning they sent a squaw to find her. The swelling had subsided, so as to show her extreme emaciation, and the squaw seeing her thus, pitifully exclaimed, "Why, Hannah!"

The tribe were encamped at Three Rivers in Canada, near to a French settlement, and soon after their arrival there, a French woman became interested in Hannah, seeing she was a captive, and was very kind to her, and often gave her salt to season her food.

She finally proposed that Mrs. Eastman make her escape and offered to secrete her from the Indians. Mrs. Eastman gladly accepted the offer, but was obliged to keep out of sight, lest she be again captured. Winters passed with their snows and wind; springs succeeded with their early buds; summers followed, filled with flowers and sunshine; autumns brought forth their abundant harvests, but the heart of the lonely woman grew sick with hope deferred. For nearly three years she had been held captive, but she well knew that if Jonathan were living he would search for her, but she fully understood how small his chance was of finding her.

A plan for escape began to take form in her mind, for she felt an intense desire to return home. The thought grew upon her, and finally took definite shape. She shuddered as she remembered the fearful journey through trackless forests, invested by fierce wild beasts and ruthless savages. Could she hope to pass such dangers alone?

One day she stood beside her chamber window, thinking deeply on her plan of escape, when her attention was attracted to a man who was passing the house. Her breath came faster as she gazed upon the tall, deep chested, broad shouldered man, with a strong, serious face.

In the whole neighborhood there was not as splendid a specimen of manhood. He was fully six feet four inches in height, and of powerful frame. He was dressed in a long jacket, or what was called a "fly coat," made something like a surtout, reaching half way to the thigh, a striped jacket under a pair of small clothes, like the coat, made of flannel cloth, that was fulled, but not shirred. His flannel shirt was buttoned loosely at the throat, he wore woolen stockings and thick leather shoes and a broad brimmed fur hat. There was nothing unusual in the costume ; similar costumes were generally worn by men in moderate circumstances, when about their ordinary business.

But his unusual height, broad shoulders, and erect carriage seemed strangely familiar. She was almost certain that it was her husband that was passing. She called to him by name, "Jonathan," when he stopped and looked around, but seeing no one, passed on. She called again, but this time he did not hear. She flew down stairs and informed the French woman, who immediately sent a little girl to call him back. The child could speak no English, but by motions and pulling his coat she persuaded him to return with her.

There were many changes in Hannah's appearance, caused by exposure and hardship, and at first Jonathan did not recognize her, but it was the happiest moment of his life when he again clasped her in his arms.

It was the third time he had passed the house while searching for her. He at once redeemed his wife, and they started back to Massachusetts. Their journey was of long duration, for they had to walk the entire distance, but despite its necessary hardships the journey was a delightful one, and left in their minds impressions destined to bear future fruit. We have no record of the length of their stay in Haverhill. In 1710, we find Jonathan Eastman enrolled as a "snow-shoe man." The general court (June 19, 1710), having ordered that a large company of soldiers under the command of Lieut. Col. Saltonstall be kept constantly armed and equipped and exercised in the town, and that these soldiers might be better prepared for every emergency, ordered them to be supplied with snow-shoes.

In April, 1723, the pastor of the first church in Haverhill, finding that the church records were lost, or that there never had been any, requested all members then living to give their names to him. Among the members was Hannah, wife of Jonathan Eastman.

No records of this church earlier than 1711 can be found. Again, Dec. 5, 1723, in the town record of Haverhill, among other petitions for land, we find that Jonathan Eastman requests 20 acres in "Providence neck," and his request was granted.

It is a tradition that Jonathan lived at one time in Andover, Mass., but there is no record of it. In 1746, they lived in Concord, N. H., in a fort known as "Eastman's" fort. It stood at the fork of the road at St. Paul's School, about two miles west of the city on what is known as the "mill road." It was to this fort that the party were destined when massacred, Aug. 10, 1745, about one mile out of Concord.

March 2, 1747, Jonathan executed a will, appointing his son Amos executor, and it was admitted to probate in Exeter, May 30, 1758. The following year (1759), Amos removed to Hollis, N. H., taking his mother with him. Mr. Eber Eastman, of No. Haverhill, said when living, that his mother had seen Hannah, when an old lady, riding horseback behind her son Amos in Hollis. In a list of people in Hollis who died at great age, the name of Hannah does not appear.

The date of the deaths and the place of burial of Jonathan and Hannah Eastman is unknown, but as we trace the life and character of this devoted couple, we cannot fail to observe that they possessed to a notable degree the true pioneer spirit. We find the tribe ever the leaders, but never the followers of civilization.

Was it simply a coincidence, that along the line of that fearful journey, where Hannah Eastman once trudged a miserable captive, where the path had been marked by fire and the tomahawk of the savage, with her devoted husband, she should return to plant the seeds of civilization and religion?

Where the Indian once hunted and fished and lived his savage life, pretty villages now cluster among the trees and hill-sides, and well-filled barns and storehouses attest to the fruitfulness of the country and the industry of the inhabitants. Hard indeed would it be to find a hamlet, however small, that did not contain one or more of the descendants of Jonathan Eastman and wife Hannah.

From Massachusetts line to Canada, they have left the impress of their lives upon the land and upon the people.

The descendants of Jonathan Eastman show on the New Hampshire Revolutionary rolls their loyalty to the colony in 1776. Four brothers, grandsons of Jonathan Eastman, served in the war of the revolution. Take the Eastmans as a whole, the writer has found them extremely patriotic, and all, (with the exception of only two,) very fond of their country.

No costly granite, nor sculptured marble, marks the resting place of this couple. Mournfully and sweet the breezes chant a requiem over those lonely graves hidden among the granite hills. But in the hearts and memories of their descendants they will ever be held in honored remembrance, until that "last great day" when each hillside grave shall give up its dead, "touched by God's right hand."

"Jonathan and Amos Eastman both of Haverhill, bought of Barachias Farnum Millwright of Rumford a piece of land lying in said Rumford containing one hundred & 90 acres being said Farnum's homestead and commonally called the Mill lot bounded as follows. Beginning at a hemlock marked standing by Turkey river thence running easterly by land of Benjamin Rolf Esq, about seventeen poles to a Beach marked thence northerly by land of said Rolf in part and partly on land in possession of Abram Hoit about one hundred and seventy nine poles to a pitch pine marked being the north east corner bounds of said hoits land thence by the mill road about one hundred and forty two poles to a white oak marked thence westerly about thirty poles to a white oak marked, standing by the mill pond thence southerly about sixty four poles to a pitch pine standing on the southerly side of said pond thence by common land and land of Ebenezer Hall and Turkey river to the bounds mentioned together with all the stream of said Turkey river in said Rumford and all right and privilege of flowing mill ponds on said river and the land adjoining together with eight acres and one hundred and twelve rods more or less together with six acres more or less the laying out and selling of said land was accepted by the proprietors of Rumford at their meeting on the second day of February, 1737, together with six acres and twenty seven perch more or less lying on Millers brook so called."

Deed dated April 11, 1745.

NOTE. This deed probably establishes the date, or about the date, of Jonathan's removal from Haverhill, and also that at the time he lived in Haverhill instead of Andover. It is a little singular the deed makes no mention of a consideration at all.

This property is now owned by St. Paul's School Corporation, Concord.

WILL OF JONATHAN EASTMAN.

"The last Will and Testament of Jonathan Eastman of Haverhill in the Province of New Hampshire in New England, Yeoman.

"First, I recommend my soul into the hands of Almighty God from whom I received it, and my body to the earth to be decently buried at the direction of my executor herein named, and touching such worldly estate wherewith it hath pleased Almighty God in this life to bless me. I give, devise, and dispose thereof in manner and form following.

“Imprimis : I will that all the debts which in duly right or conscience I owe to any person or persons whatsoever together with my funeral expenses and charges be well and truly paid by my executor hereafter named in convenient season after my decease.

“Item : I give unto Hannah, my dear and well beloved wife the free use and improvement of all the East room in my house in Rumford with the chamber belonging to the same and the priviledge of so much of the cellar as she wants for her own use and improvement during the time she remains my widow. I also give her one cow, six sheep, one swine and my horse, to be hers forever, all which I will and order my son Amos to keep for her, winter and summer, or others of the like number if she dispose of them during the time she remains my widow.

“I also give her twelve bushels of Indian corn, six bushels of rye, two bushels of wheat, four bushels of malt, one hundred and twenty pounds of beef, twenty pounds of flax from the swingle, and ten cords of wood to be cut and corded up at her door, all of which I will and order my son Amos to pay her yearly and every year when she demands it during the time she remains my widow, but if it so happens that she marrey again, then in lieu of the aforesaid donation, I give her ten pounds money old tenor pr. annum, which I order my son Amos to pay her yearly and every year during her natural life if she demands it of him.

“I also give her the household stuff or all moveable within doors which are utensils of housewifery, to be disposed of by her to such of my daughters as she sees cause.

“Thirdly : I give and bequeathe unto my dear and well beloved son Peter, all that tract of land he now lives on near Wash Pond in Haverhill District, containing sixty acres more or less, which land he has already by a deed of gift from me and thirty pounds money and tenor in lawful money equal to it which I will and order my son Amos to pay him within eight years after my decease which lands with what he has of me before is in full share and portion of my estate.

“Fourthly, I give and bequeathe unto my dear and well beloved son, Richard, all that right of land at the plantation called Suncook which I purchased of William Ayre, and is now in my said sons possession, also one half of my wearing apparel in full of his portion of my estate.

“Fifthly : I give and bequeathe unto my dear and well beloved son William, that land where he now lives near the Wash Pond, containing in the fifty five acres more or less part of which I purchased of Mr. James Mc’Hard, and part I had of Joshua Harriman by exchange.

“I also give him the one half of my wearing apparel being the whole of what I have not already given to my son William which lands he has already by deed from me, and is with what has before had of me his full share and portion of my estate.

“Sixthly : I give and bequeathe unto my dear and well beloved son Jonathan, ten pounds old tenor which I will and order my son Amos to pay him within ten years after my decease, which ten pounds together with four hundred and twenty pounds he has before received of me, is his full portion in my estate.

“Seventhly : I give and bequeath unto my dear and well beloved son Amos all my estate in the town of Rumford whether real or personal in possession, revision or remainder, together with all my other estate which I have not herein disposed of, of all kinds whatsoever.

“Eighthly : I give and bequeath unto my dear and well beloved daughter Mehitable ten pounds money old tenor, which I will and order my son Amos to pay her in money or passable bills of credit within five years after my decease, which sum together with what she has received of me is her part in full of her portion of my estate.

"Twelfthly: I give and bequeath unto my well and beloved daughter Hannah ten pounds money old tenor or lawful money equivalent to it which I will and order my son Amos to pay her in six years after my decease in money or passable bills of credit, which sum with what she had before received of me is her full portion in my estate.

"Lastly: I do hereby constitute, ordain and appoint my dear and well beloved son Amos, to be sole executor of this my last will and testament, to all intents and purposes to whom I give all the remainder of my estate not herein expressly disposed of to in possession revision or remainder, and I hereby utterly revoke, disanul and disalow all former wills, testements, legices executed by me heretofore named or made, ratifying and confirming this and no other to be my last will and testament. In witness whereof I, the said Jonathan Eastman have hereunto set my hand and seal in this second day of March Anno Domini 1747, and in the twenty first year of his Majesty's reign.

"Signed, Sealed, Published and declared by the said Jonathan Eastman to be his last will and testament.

28. Peter Eastman³ (Joseph², Roger¹) born in Hadley, Mass., Jan. 20, 1786; married Nov. 28, 1708, Mehitable Root, daughter of Hezekiah and Mehitable (Frary) Root, of Deerfield, and granddaughter of Thomas Root, of Northampton, Mass. Peter Eastman probably settled in Suffield, Conn., at that time in Massachusetts, as we find in the records of that town the birth of five children.

From Suffield, Peter removed to New Jersey, probably on account of his mother going there, sometime between the birth of his son Hezekiah and son Benjamin. The earliest mention of him in New Jersey is in the deed mentioned below. It is very probable all his children, except the first five, were born in New Jersey, but no records of their birth can be found. He returned to Connecticut and located in New Fairfield in the thirties, as the proprietors records of Cornwall, show he bought land there in 1738, and he was called then "of New Fairfield." He sold the land in 1739, "all rights and title," so that it is evident he never lived there, although the history of that town says he "built the first house there and the first meeting of the proprietors was held at his house." The records say, however, that though this meeting was appointed at his house it was changed to another man's.

We have no record of his death, but it is probable he died soon after the leasing of his last and only farm to his beloved son, Joseph.

No will or settlement of his estate has been found.

The records of this branch of the family have been so imperfectly kept that not much data concerning them can be obtained, consequently we have to rely on tradition. One is that he had twelve sons and some daughters. It is possible he had more than one wife, though we have no record of another.

33. Bethia Sheppard³ (Sarah Eastman², Roger¹), born March 13, 1688; married Jan. 7, 1713-14, Joseph Kimball, son of John³, Henry², Richard¹, born in Amesbury, Mass., where he died Oct. 12, 1723. On Oct. 8, 1718, he bought one and one half acres of marsh in the Higely Piggelty, so called. Administration was granted his widow, Bethia, Nov. 4, 1723. The property amounted to £235. On Feb. 5, 1763, Bethia Kimball, widow, represented to the general court "that she has been a widow thirty-eight years; that she has lost all her children, having that by law are obliged to support her, and she asks that the court may assist her." Mr. Kimball was a wheelwright, and lived in Amesbury, Mass.

Lucius Root Eastman in his work says he married 2d Sarah Brown, but it is very doubtful of his having a second wife, as in his will dated Dec. 18, 1753, two days before his death, he mentions his wife Sarah. Also he mentions his son Timothy, of whom we have no account. He also mentions his "Brother Philip Huntoon." This may be the husband of one of his sisters. Samuel Eastman's will can be found in Vol. xii, page 622, on the old Exeter records now in Concord.

HIS WILL.

“In the name of God Amen, the 9th day of January 1751-2, I Thomas Eastman of Kingston in the Province of New Hampshire in New England, husbandman being indisposed of body but of sound mind and memory, thanks be given to God therefore calling unto mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men to die, do make and ordain this my last will and testament that is to say principally and first of all, I give and recomend my soul into the hands of God that gave it and my body I recomend to the earth to be buried in decent and Christian burial at the discretion of my executors, nothing doubting but at the general resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God and as touching such worldly estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me in this life I give, devise, and dispose of the same in the following manner and form :—

“Imprimis: I give and bequeath unto my now dearly beloved wife, Elizabeth, all the moveable estate, goods, and effects which she brought with herself to me when she became my wife all to be at her dispose.

“Item. I give and bequeath unto my beloved sons Obadiah and Thomas all my lands lying within the east parish in said Kingston, it being all my lands in my home place whereon I now live as it lays and is bounded and nine acres be it more or less in said parish as it lays and is bounded which I purchased of Thomas Brown of late of the parish the said lands with the buildings and the orchards thereon be it more or less with all the appurtenances, privileges, and commodities unto the same belonging or in anywise appertaining to be equally divided between them the said Thomas and Obadiah and they, the said Obadiah and Thomas, their heirs and assigns forever the said premises to have and to hold forever.

“Further I give and bequeath unto my said son Obadiah his heirs and assigns forever all my moveable goods and effects without doors as my stock of cattle, horses, sheep Etc., and all manner of tools or instruments for all sorts of work both for man or beast and all sorts of furniture and tackling for horses and neat cattle and also my part in the saw mill at the Tricking Falls so called in said town, also all my moveable goods and effects within doors, viz, all my household stuff or goods saving and excepting my own wearing cloths which I hereby give to my son Thomas as shall be hereafter mentioned and also the wearing cloaths which Mary my late beloved wife brought with herself to mend some of her household goods which she also brought which I hereby give to my two daughters which I had by her and shall be also hereafter mentioned, also I give to my said son Obadiah all the profit and improvement of all that part of my estate which I have hereby given to my said son Thomas that is to say all the profit and improvement untill the said Thomas shall arrive at the age of twenty one years and then the said Thomas to come into the possession of his part of the premises and in case the said Thomas should depart this life before he arrive at the said twenty one years of age that then I will and ordain that all his part of my estate which I have hereby given him shall go to the said Obadiah by him his heirs and assigns freely to be possessed and enjoyed forever.

“Item. I give and bequeath to my beloved son Thomas all my wearing cloaths.

“Item. I give and bequeath unto my beloved sons, Edward and Ebenezer all the residue of my lands being sixty acres more or less being or lying in said Kingston, viz, fifty acres more or less, being part of the sixteenth lot in the two hundred acre grants so called in said Kingston and ten acres I purchased of the commoners of said Kingston adjoining the former and also one half of a right so called both in the divided and undivided lands in the town of Canterbury in the Province aforesaid, the said premises, viz, the said lands in said Kingston, viz, in the two hundred acre grants and adjoining and also in Canterbury aforesaid with all the appurtenance, privileges and commodities thereto belonging or in any wise appertaining the said Edward and Ebenezer, their heirs and assigns to have and to hold forever and in case either the said Edward or Ebenezer should depart this life before he arrive at the age of twenty one years my will is that the survivor enjoy the deceased's part of the premises, viz, to his heirs and assigns forever.

“Furthermore, I hereby give my said son Edward full privilege to cut and work up timber on any of the last mentioned premises till the said Ebenezer shall arrive at the age of twenty one years.

“Furthermore, I do hereby will and ordain that the said Edward and Ebenezer pay to my beloved daughters Sarah and Mary the sum of ten pounds each according to that which is called ‘old tenor’ to be paid on their arrival of twenty one years, or if they or either of them should marry sooner than that then to be paid on their marriage day.

“Item. I give and bequeath unto my beloved daughters Sarah and Mary all the wearing cloaths that their mother, my late well beloved wife Mary brought with her to me when she became my wife, to be equely divided between them. Also I hereby give to the said Sarah and Mary, one good feather bed and feather bolster and two pillows all with their cases and the said bed to be furnished with two pairs of cotton and linen sheets and three coverlids and a suit of curtains all which their mother my late wife Mary brought with her to me, also six pewter platters and a dozen of pewter plates to be equely divided between them also two table cloths, one diaper, the other cotton and linen to be equely divided all which their mother brought, and also a case of drawers made of maple wood and a chest of drawers made of pine, one oval table, a dozen of black chairs, Banister backs and round stand or tea table all which their mother brought with her when she became my wife and to be equely divided between them the said household goods to be delivered to the said two daughters when they arrive at the age of eighteen years or if they or either of them should marry sooner than that age, then to be given to them on their marriage but their wearing clothes to be given up to them as soon as they grow up to wear them, and if either of them should depart this life before the above mentioned things are delivered to them as before mentioned, then the survivor to have and to enjoy all as if both of said daughters should die before they come into possession as afforesaid that then my will is that all these things given to my two daughters, shall go to my son Ebenezer by him to be freely possessed and enjoyed forever.

“Further, I give to my two daughters, one hundred pounds, viz, fifty pounds each according to that which is now called the ‘old tenor’ to be paid as follows, viz, twenty pounds, viz, ten pounds each by the said Edward and Ebenezer as before mentioned and the remaining eighty pounds of the same tenor I hereby will and ordain my said son Obadiah to pay as followeth, viz, forty pounds to Sarah and forty pounds to Mary to be paid when they arrive at the age of twenty one years or in case they or either of them should marry before they come to that age, then to be paid on marriage or in case either the said Sarah or the said Mary should depart this life before marriage or before they at the before mentioned age, that then the survivor shall have all of the forementioned money paid her as above said and I do constitute and make, ordain my said son Obadiah, to be my sole executor of this my last will and testament, and I do hereby will and ordain that my said executor pay the said sum of eighty pounds old tenor to my two daughters as before mentioned and he shall also surrender and give up to the said daughters the said wearing cloathes and household goods before mentioned and also that he pay all my honest debts also I hereby will and ordain that my said executor take the care and be at the charge of bringing up my small children for which care and trouble I have considered him in giving him my moveable goods and effects. Furthermore, I hereby will and ordain my said executor immediately after my decease to agree with his mother in law, my present wife well beloved wife Elizabeth and make her full satisfaction for her trouble which she shall have been at with and for me and my family during the little time she has been my wife and furthermore in case my present wife should have a child by me I hereby will and ordain my said executor to pay the said child fifty pounds equal to the 'old tenor' when it shall arrive at the age of twenty one years. Furthermore I will and ordain that my said executor shall give my daughter Sarah my looking glas which my said wife Mary brought with her to me when she shall arrive at the age of eighteen years and if she should marry sooner than that age then to be delivered on marriage also to Mary my great Bible to be given up to her when she arrive at the age of eighteen years and if she should marry sooner than that age, then to be delivered up to her on her marriage also to give up to the said Sarah a gold ring which was also my wife's to be delivered as the looking glass and to Mary a silver book pin and a pair of silver shirt buttons to be delivered as the Bible, And I do hereby utterly dissallow, revoke, and disanul all, every, and other former wills, testaments, legacies, and bequests by me in any way before named, willed, and bequeathed ratifying and confirming this and no other to be my last will and testament.

“ In witness whereof I do hereby set my hand and seal this nith day of January Anno Domini 1751-2.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF ROGER EASTMAN.

"In the name of God Amen. I, Roger Easman of Newton in the State of New Hampshire in New England, Husbandman, being sensible of my mortal state, and finding the infirmities of age coming upon me, but through the goodness of God of perfect mind and memory and of a disposing mind and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die, Do make and ordain this my last will and testament: and in the first place I give and recommend my soul into the hands of God who gave it, and my body I commit to the earth to be buried in a decent Christian manner at the descretion of my executor after named, nothing doubting but at the general ressurection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God, and as to such worldly goods and estate as it hath pleased God to bless me within this life, I give and dispose in the following manner and form.

"Imprimis: I give and bequeath to Rachel Easman my well beloved wife, one cow, three sheep and one swine, and the use and improvement of all my household good so long as she shall remain my widow: as also the improvement of one third part of all my lands together with the easterly half part of my dwelling house and a convenient part of my barn.

"Item. I give and bequeathe to my two sons namely Thomas and Samuel Easman to them and their heirs and assigne all my lands in Weare town in the said State of New Hampshire to be divided to them into two equal parts: I likewise give and bequeathe to my said two sons Thomas and

Samuel ten dollars each to be paid to them out of my estate by my son Isaac Easman at the end of six years after my decease which is to be their full share of my estate.

“Item: I give and bequeathe to my son Ichabod Easman and to his heirs, thirty pounds lawful money to be paid him out of my estate by my son Isaac Easman in four years after my decease, which sum of thirty pounds is to be his full share in my estate.

“Item: I give and bequeathe to my son Nicholas Easman or to his heirs thirty pounds lawful money to be paid him out of my estate by my said son Isaac Easman in two years after my decease which som of thirty pounds is to be his full share in my estate.

“Item: I give and bequeathe to my two daughters, namely Hannah Hunt and Judith Farrin two third part of all my indoor household good after my wives decease as also one pound four shillings lawful money each to be paid to them out of my estate by my son Isaac in six years after my decease which sum is to be their full share of my estate.

“Item: I give and bequeathe to my daughter Jenne Sargent and to her daughter Sarah Sargent my grand daughter the other third part of all my household goods and furniture to be divided to them immediately after my wives decease as aforesaid two third part to the said Hannah and Judith and one third part to the said Jenne and Sarah: My will and meaning is that my said daughter Jenne shall be entitled to receive two third parts of the one third part given to the said Jenne Sargent and her daughter Sarah. I likewise give to my said Jenne Sargent one pound four shillings lawfull money to be paid her out of my estate by my son Isaac Easman in six years after my decease.

“Item. I give and bequeathe to my son Isaac Easman to him and to his heirs and assignes all my lands and buildings in Newton and South Hampton and meadows in South Hampton in the state of New Hampshire with all my lands and meadow ground in Amesbury with all my stock of cattle sheep horse and swine together with all other my personal estate not disposed of before in this my last will, with the third part of my land given to my wife after her decease—he the said Isaac Easman paying all my just and due debts funeral charges and doctors bills and shall pay three pounds to my son Thomas and three pounds to my son Samuel and thirty pounds to my son Stephen and thirty pounds to my son Ichabod and thirty pounds to my son Nicholas and one pound four shillings to my daughter Hannah Hunt and one pound four shillings to my daughter Judith Farrin and one pound four shillings to my daughter Jenne Sargent and shall perform and execute this my will in all respects as I have before ordered at the several times before mentioned.

“Moreover, my will and meaning is that in case said son Isaac Easman do not pay the several legacys before mantioned in this my will that each of my children shall be intitled to the value of each legacy as before mentioned in my lands and that my lands be held to make good the same, and lastly I do constitute and appoint my said son Isaac Easman to be my sole executor to this my last will and testament.

“This is my mind and my will and I do confirm this and no other to be my last will and testamont this twenty fourth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred seventy and seven.

“ROGER EASMAN. (Seal.)

“Signed, sealed, published, pronounced and declared by the said Roger Easman to be his last will and testament.

“In presence of us the subscribers,

“Caleb Pilsbury.

“Micajah Pilsbury.

“Isaac Pilsbury.”

"I, Moses Pillsbury testify that About a year before the death of the above named Roger Easman, he brot this will to me to read it to him, which I did, whereupon the deceased said it was agreeable to his mind and he did not see how he could mend it and desired me to keep it which I did till after his decease,

"MOSES PILLSBURY."

"Rockingham, ss.

"Sept 19, 1791. Then Moses Pillsbury, personally appearing made solomn oath to the truth of the above deposition by him subscribed, and at the same time Micajah Pillsbury, one of the subscribing witnesses made solomn oath that he saw Roger Eastman the testator sign, seal and heard him declare this instrument to be his last will and testament, that at the time of doing so he was to the best of said Micajah's discernment of sound and disposing mind and memory, and that he with Caleb Pillsbury deceased and Isaac Pillsbury, not present set their names hereto as witnesses in presence of the testator.

"I do therefore more approve and allow the same.

"OLIVER PEABODY, Judge of Probate."

49. Samuel Eastman⁴ (Roger³, John², Roger¹), born —; married —; settled in Hawke, now Danville, N. H. There is a tradition in the family that he served in the French war and in the Revolutionary war, died with fever in Charlestown, Mass., and was buried near the public square. Miss Emerson, a cousin, said when living she had seen his grave, but now no trace of it can be found. The name of his wife is unknown.

It is said Samuel left a widow and five children.

50. Thomas Eastman⁴ (Thomas³, John², Roger¹), born in Concord, N. H., Dec. 27, 1756; died in Bridgewater, N. H., in 1838. He married and settled in Bridgewater, N. H. Thomas Eastman enlisted April 23, 1775, in Capt. Isaac Baldwin's company, Col. John Stark's regiment, as a private; time of service, three months and sixteen days. This was the same company his brother Collins was in. Thomas Eastman again enlisted in Captain Hutchins's company, Col. Joseph Cilley's regiment, as a private; mustered in February, 1778. His brother John was in this same company. Thomas was in the battle of Bunker Hill, where his captain was killed. His descendants claim that he was in the battles of Stillwater, Saratoga, and Monmouth, but there are no records to show it. It is honor enough to know he was in the battle of Bunker Hill, with a big B. Mr. Eastman removed from Hopkinton, N. H., to Bridgewater in 1804.

68. Obadiah Eastman⁴ (Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 11, 1721; died in Salem, N. H., March 28, 1767; married in 1744, Mehitabel Watts, daughter of John and Sarah (Dustin) Watts, and granddaughter of Hannah Dustin. Sarah was about eight years of age when her mother was captured. Mr. Eastman lived in Salem, N. H., where he died. He seems to have been a worthy and substantial citizen. He was chosen selectman ten times, commencing in 1752, in which year he was chosen treasurer of the town; was moderator in 1764.

"Salem, Feb. ye 14th, 1764, bid off to Henry Lancaster, the pue next to the broad alley upon the women's side, right before Mr. Samuel Hazeltines pue, for one hundred and sixty and one pounds, which I resign to Obadiah Eastman, his giving the town security, as witness my hand.

"HENRY LANCASTER.

"Executed by me, Obadiah Eastman."

It is said that Mehitable married again, but we have no record of it. The grave of Obadiah is in the cemetery near the south part of the town, and is the only grave, so far as known, of an Eastman in town. His children all left town and died elsewhere, except those who died young.

69. Ruth Eastman⁴ (Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Concord, N. H., Jan. 17, 1729; married at the age of thirteen years, Dr. Ezra Carter. Her first child was born before she was fourteen years old. She was married by Rev. Timothy Walker, Jan. 30, 1743 (church records). Dr. Carter died, and his widow married 2d, by Rev. Timothy Walker, Aug. 14, 1768, Samuel Fowler, Esq., of Boscawen, N. H., a prominent citizen. He was the first lawyer and tavern keeper in Boscawen.

CHILDREN BY SECOND HUSBAND.

- v. Ruth Fowler⁵, b. —. She was the mother of William Pitt Fessenden, born in Boscawen, N. H., Oct. 16, 1806, in the house subsequently owned by Dea. Thomas Gerish. The child was christened after the Episcopal service, Daniel Webster being its god-father. His father was Gen. Samuel Fessenden, of Portland, Me. William Pitt graduated from Bowdoin College in 1823, with distinguished honors, receiving his degree of A. B. before he was seventeen years of age. Such precocity has few equals; one was Edward Everett, and another was the great commoner of England, for whom he was named. He was a member of the national convention in 1840, candidate for congress in 1850, member of national convention in same year. He was elected to congress in 1854, elected senator in 1859, for six years. The year previous, Bowdoin conferred on him the degree of LL. D., and Harvard paid the same compliment in 1864. He died suddenly after a week's illness, Sept. 8, 1869. His mother married Nathaniel Green, of Boscawen, N. H., and they had a daughter who married Moses Bailey, of Hopkinton, N. H.

70. Moses Eastman⁴ (Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Concord, N. H., Feb. 28, 1732; died in Concord, April 4, 1812; married in 1756, Elizabeth Kimball, born in Concord, N. H., Sept. 23, 1738, daughter of David and Mary (Wilson) Kimball, and granddaughter of David³, Benjamin², Richard¹, the emigrant. During the French and Indian war, in September, 1754, he was one of Capt. John Chandler's company of scouts, and in 1755 he was sergeant in Capt. Joseph Eastman's (his brother's) company of Rangers, who marched to Albany, then to Fort Edward, in the expedition against Crown Point. September, 1762, he was one of Captain Marston's company, at Crown Point. Early in the Revolution he enlisted as sergeant, on April 23, 1775, for three months and sixteen days, in Captain Baldwin's company, in Col. John Stark's regiment. He was with Stark on the seventeenth of June at the battle of Bunker Hill. During the siege of Boston, in 1775, in consequence of the Connecticut troops retiring at the expiration of their term of enlistment, General Washington sent messages to the Committee of Safety of New Hampshire, for three regiments of militia to be raised immediately for his reinforcement, and within ten days thereafter, New Hampshire furnished thirty-one companies of six-weeks men, who, on their arrival at Cambridge, were highly complimented by Washington. The sixth company on the list was from Concord, N. H., had fifty-one privates, three sergeants, three corporals, commanded by Capt. Benjamin Emery, of which company Moses Eastman was second lieutenant. These companies of militia were discharged soon after the evacuation of Boston, March 17, 1776. In September, 1777, Moses Eastman again enlisted in Capt. Joshua Abbott's company, in Lieut.-Col. Henry Gerrish's regiment. This company marched to reinforce the Northern Army, and while they arrived too late for the battle of Bennington, they joined the army at Saratoga, and were present at the surrender of Burgoyne. In August, 1778, Moses Eastman again enlisted as sergeant in Capt. Aaron Quinby's company of volunteers, in Col. Moses Kelly's regiment, in the expedition to Rhode Island. Moses was a signer of the Association Test, in 1776, wherein each of the subscribers solemnly engaged and promised that they would to the utmost of their power, at the "risque" of their lives and fortunes, with arms oppose the hostile proceedings of the British fleets and armies against the United American colonies. In the Old Fort Cemetery in East Concord, a fine granite monolith was erected last October (1894) to the memory of thirteen Revolutionary soldiers buried there. Five of the names inscribed on the tablet were Eastmans, among whom were Moses and David Eastman.

71. Samuel Eastman⁴ (Philip³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Ashford, Conn., May 17, 1716; married 1st, Feb. 25, 1742-3, Thankful Reed; 2d, March 1, 1759, Dorothy Humphrey, daughter of John and Hannah (Russell) Humphrey, and widow of John Gaggail. Mr. Eastman was licensed as a tavern keeper in Ashford, in 1762. On the town records of Ashford will be found the births of his first six children, and on the records of Rehoboth, R. I., will be found those of his second wife, so it is supposed he removed to Rehoboth about 1767. On the Congregational church records in Rehoboth will be found the date of the baptism of the children of Samuel Eastman, viz., Abigail, Dorothy, John, Ruth, and Samuel, baptized May 17, 1772. On the same records will be found the name of Dorothy Eastman, a member of the church, Jan. 26, 1772. This was probably Mrs. Eastman, as her daughter Dorothy would have been rather young to join the church at eleven years of age. It is not known when or where Samuel or his wife died, but it is thought in Rehoboth.

The date of his death is unknown. Mr. Cheeney and wife both joined the church in Ashford, May 16, 1742. He bought lands there of Martha Fitch, of Boston, Oct. 6, 1746, a part of which he sold to his brother, Col. Thomas Cheeney, April 13, 1748. Six of their children were living at the date of their uncle's death, and inherited a share of his estate.

74. Jonathan Eastman⁴ (Philip³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Ashford, Conn., June 3, 1724; married Elizabeth Pearse, and settled in Walpole, N. H. Mr. Eastman was a farmer. Late in life he removed to Northfield, N. H., but in about a year, in 1787, removed to Enfield, where he soon went to the "Shakers," where he died. Of his family record it is difficult to obtain much, especially dates, as his records were lost by fire at the "Shakers." It is not known how many of his children went there with him, but one, Jonathan, went with his father, but when about fourteen years of age left them.

The order of births may not be correct.

75. Peter Eastman⁴ (Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born in Haverhill, Mass., April 20, 1710; married Elizabeth Harriman, of Hampstead, N. H., where he settled and died. He, with Peter Green (probably his uncle), owned a large share of Hampstead, as also the island in Island Pond in Hampstead. We have no further record of him except the birth of his children on the town books.

The proprietors of Haverhill, March 21, 1731, gave to Hon. Richard Saltonstall, a member of His Majesty's Council, one half of the large island in Island Pond, in consideration of valuable services rendered the proprietors; the remainder was sold to him for thirty shillings an acre. It was then estimated to contain two hundred acres, and called Island Farm in Perch Pond. It was sold by Saltonstall in 1734 to Jonathan and Peter Eastman and Peter Green, who sold it to Gov. Benning Wentworth in 1741. It was owned by him and his heirs until 1780, and from then till 1865 it was transferred seventeen times, at which time it was purchased by its present owners. This Jonathan Eastman must have been the father of Peter, as his will mentions Wash Pond, which lies in Hampstead, though no record is in existence of Jonathan ever living in Hampstead. Peter settled in the town about 1732, and made his home near the western shore of Wash Pond. Peter Eastman was town clerk of Hampstead in 1758 and 1760. On a petition sent to Gov. Benning Wentworth and to the General Court assembled Jan. 1, 1743-4, the names of Peter and William Eastman appear. In a list of persons assessed in Hampstead in 1764 the name of Dr. Peter Eastman appears.

76. Richard Eastman⁴ (Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born in Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 9, 1712; died in Lovell, Me., in Dec., 1807; married 1st, in Andover, Mass., by Rev. Mr. Philips, Nov. 15, 1737, Molly Lovejoy, born Dec. 17, 1718, bapt. Dec. 24, 1718, daughter of Henry and Sarah (Farnum) Lovejoy. She died in Pembroke, N. H., June 14, 1764. He married 2d, Sarah Abbott, daughter of James and Abigail (Farnum) Abbott, of West Parish, Concord, N. H., born Aug. 13, 1730. Sarah was the widow of Job Abbott. Mr. Eastman settled first in Pembroke, N. H., and about 1768 removed to Conway, N. H. He purchased of Thomas Chadburn all the interest he had in the "mill lot," with the improvements thereon, but soon transferred by gift, or otherwise, the property to two of his sons that settled in Conway. Soon after, he removed to Lovell, Me., where he established the ferry across the Saco river, and when the toll bridge was built a little further up the river, he tended it. The most of his children settled in Conway and the adjoining towns, and at this day there are more of the name in that part of the country than any place known, the greater part of them descendants of Richard. He took a prominent part in the settlement of Fryeburg, and was a deacon of the church there.

H., Nov. 30, 1790; married 1st, Dec. 14, 1738, Ruth Chase, died Jan. 22, 1742; married 2d, April 19, 1748, Rebecca Jewett, died in Bath, N. H., Jan. 26, 1806. It is not known where he lived when his first three children were born, but the next four were born in Hampstead, N. H., and perhaps others. Mr. Eastman removed to Haverhill, N. H., in the early settlement of the town, but he stayed but a short time, removing to Bath, N. H., in 1767, where he lived the rest of his life. He lies in an old abandoned burying ground in Bath, in the neighborhood known as "Petty Borough." The railroad crosses his farm in a deep cut just below Lisbon village, about two miles.

- 228. xi. Amos⁵, b. —.

78. Amos Eastman⁴ (Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born in Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 3, 1719; died in Hollis, N. H., March 6, 1808; married in Concord, N. H., by Rev. Timothy Walker, January 9, 1743, Mehitable Bradley, the ninth child of Abraham Bradley, of Haverhill, Mass., died in Hollis, N. H., Nov., 1813. Amos lived in Concord, N. H., with his father, in 1746, in Eastman's fort, at the fork of the road at St. Paul's School, about two miles west of the city. Mr. Eastman was a lieutenant in the war. Mr. Eastman, in company with John and William Stark, of Derryfield, now Manchester, N. H., in April, 1752, was on a hunting expedition near Baker's river, in Rumney. The company had been very successful, estimating their furs at five hundred and sixty pounds old tenor. Here they fell in with a party of ten Indians of the St. Francis tribe. It being in time of peace danger was not at first apprehended, but towards evening the Indians made a prisoner of John Stark, who had separated from the rest to collect traps. Suspecting mischief, the party was proceeding down the river, William Stark in a canoe and Amos Eastman on the bank, when the Indians came upon them, took Amos prisoner, shot into the canoe and killed Stinson, who was afterwards stripped and scalped. William Stark escaped through the intrepidity of his brother John, who struck up the gun of the Indian who aimed at his brother. Eastman and John Stark were taken captives to St. Francis, Canada, which they reached the ninth of June. Here they were compelled to run the gauntlet, the usual ceremony in such cases. The young Indians arranged themselves in two lines, each armed with a rod to strike the captives as they passed along. Eastman was severely whipped, but Stark snatched up a club and made his way through the lines, knocking the Indians down right and left whenever they came within reach, and escaped with scarcely a blow. Eastman was sold to a French master and was kindly treated, as was also Stark, who became a favorite among the Indians. Both were redeemed after about six months by a Mr. Wheelright and Captain Stephens, from Charlestown, who were sent from Massachusetts for the purpose of obtaining the release of the prisoners. Stark paid for his redemption one hundred and one dollars, and Eastman sixty. They returned home by the way of Lake Champlain and Albany. Mr. Eastman removed to Hollis, N. H., in 1759. Mr. Eastman was also a soldier in the French and Indian war.

88. Azariah Eastman⁴ (Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born —; married Ruth Jenkins. We know but very little about him. He lived in New Fairfield, Conn. There are no church records of the church there prior to 1751, and of the eight male members at that date, the name of Azariah Eastman appears as one. The same records say the wife of Azariah Eastman was admitted a member by profession, Jan. 2, 1757. The same records say the widow Eastman died in 1777. This must have been the widow of Azariah, and of course if so he must have died first. The dates of baptisms will be found on the books of the church in New Fairfield. It is very likely his children were all born in New Fairfield.

89. Joseph Eastman⁴ (Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born in New Jersey in Sept., 1724; died in Marshall, N. Y., Sept. 2, 1802; married Oct. 12, 1746, Phebe Hendricks. When a boy of fourteen or fifteen years of age, he went with his parents to New Fairfield, Conn., where he was married. A deed of 1756 shows where Joseph bought lands in New Fairfield, and in 1761 leases his father's farm. Another deed of 1788 calls Joseph of "New Milford," so he may have removed there after his father's death. In 1788, he removed to Kingsbury, Washington county, N. Y., and in 1798 we find him in Paris, Oneida county, and 1799 in Marshall, once a part of Paris. In a small plot of ground taken off the original farm in Marshall, lie the remains of Joseph and his wife Phebe. The following are inscriptions from their tombstones:

In memory of
 Joseph Eastman
 who departed this life
 Sept. 15, 1802, in the 78th year of his life.

In memory of

Lieut. Ebenezer Eastman commanded a company in Stark's brigade at the battle of Bunker Hill. The next Sabbath after, and while she was at church, hearing the neighbors telling of hearing the cannonade, she became alarmed, started on horseback through the wilderness, guided by blazed trees, taking her babe with her, for Charlestown. Leaving her child about half way on her journey with friends, she arrived at Charlestown and found her husband safe and sound. This incident is fully described by Benjamin F. Taylor in his poem "Mary Butler's Ride." Mr. Eastman lived in Gilmanton, N. H.

106. Edward Eastman^d (Ebenezer³, Samuel², Roger¹), born in Kingston, N. H., Feb. 25, 1732 ; baptized there April 21, 1734 ; died in Salisbury, N. H., April 12, 1814 ; married in Kingston, May 6, 1758, Anna Judkins. Mr. Eastman accompanied by his small family removed from Kingston to Salisbury, N. H., in 1765. Another record says he did not remove to Salisbury till 1774. He settled on the west side of " Smith's Hill," where he cleared up a large farm, and erected the buildings now (1899) occupied by Titus H. Wadsworth. He was a prominent man in the town and served with distinction in the Revolutionary war, and was one of the committee of safety. His first four children were baptized in Kingston, the fourth one in 1766, so that it is possible he did not remove to Salisbury until the latter date mentioned.

120. Kingsbury Eastman⁵ (David⁴, John³, John², Roger¹), born in South Hampton (?); bapt. there July 19, 1750. He lost his life at sea, Nov. 10, 1791. He was in Harpswell, Me., as early as 1770. He probably went there earlier than that. The ear marks of his cattle are recorded on the town records, May 30, 1774. Many traditions have been handed down of this family; one is from a very aged descendant. "Three brothers came from England to America. One of these settled in New Hampshire. The other two settled in Harpswell, Me. One of these took the king's side in the Revolutionary war, and settled on the English side of the St. Croix river. He finally went to Nova Scotia. The third brother, whose name is not recalled, espoused the cause of liberty. His wife's name was Susan, of Dutch origin. She was a woman of superior strength, and at all the raisings and gatherings in all those days they had wrestling bouts, and she would always throw the last man. She could pick up a cask of cider and drink from the bung. She could butcher a 400-pound hog and hang him up without aid from any one. She drove six English officers from her house because they were saucy to her." The farm of Capt. Kingsbury Eastman has been in the family for over 130 years. His house stood at Cundy's Harbor, East Harpswell. In Vol. v., page 160, Mass. Rev. Rolls, will be found the following: "Eastman, Kingsbury. Return of men enlisted by Capt. John Snow to serve at Harpswell; service from July, 1777, to Dec. 7, 1777; also sergeant in Capt. Nehemiah Curtis' company, Col. Jonathan Mitchel's regiment; entered service July 7, 1779; discharged Sept. 25, 1779; service, 2 mos. 18 days on Penobscot expedition; roll dated Harpswell and sworn to at North Yarmouth, Cumberland county." He married 1st, Nov. 22, 1770, Mary Hadly; 2d, Ruth Mareen Eaton. He had seven sons and four daughters, of whom we have only the following.

CHILDREN.

- 312. i. Nathaniel⁶, b. —.
- 313. ii. Sarah⁶, b. in Harpswell, Me., Dec. 30, 1788; d. Oct. 13, 1839.

 - vi. Caroline⁷, b. —; m. a Storer.
 - vii. Mary⁷, b. —; did not marry.
 - viii. Ruth⁷, b. —; m. Samuel Eaton Batchelder, lived in Bowdoin, Me. Some of the other sons, it is said, were lost at sea.

121. Lydia Eastman⁵ (Jeremiah⁴, Zachariah³, John², Roger¹), born in Byfield, Mass., Nov. 8, 1726; died in Monmouth, Me., with her son John, March 9, 1820, aged 94 years; married 1st, Capt. Joseph Chandler, born in Salisbury, Mass., in 1725, son of Joseph and Mary (Tucker) Chandler; married 2d, Nov. 19, 1778, John Bartlett. Captain Chandler served in the French war; was by trade a blacksmith, and had a farm about a mile north of the centre of Epping, N. H., near the Governor Plummer estate, on Oak Hill. It is recorded at Epping that "in 1760 Capt. Joseph Chandler's cattle mark was a crop of the left ear." He was highway surveyor in 1763, and at the annual parish meeting, held March 14, 1774, he was chosen parish clerk. On the 2d January, 1775, Captain Chandler was chosen one of the committee of inspection and correspondence for the parish of Epping. He was a captain in the Revolutionary war, and at a meeting, July 22, 1776, of the New Hampshire Committee of Safety, their record says: "Gave Southampton soldiers leave to go join Captain Chandler's company." He died in the service of his country, at Mt. Independence, Sept. 17, 1776. An inventory of the estate of Capt. Joseph Chandler, late of Epping, was exhibited Jan. 29, 1777, by Lydia Chandler, administratrix. The real and personal estate amounted to £849:0:3, and on Feb. 25, 1778, she exhibited a further account of personal estate of £272:3:61/2, of which she had paid out £224:4:8.

123. Jeremiah Eastman⁵ (Jeremiah⁴, Zachariah³, John², Roger¹), born in Byfield, Mass., Nov. 28, 1732; died in Deerfield, N. H., in 1802; married Hannah Quimby. He first lived in Kingston, but removed from there and settled on a large tract of land on the southwestern shore of Pleasant Pond in Deerfield, N. H., in 1762. He was selectman in 1772-4, and in 1776 was one of a committee to fix the site for a meeting house, and in 1779 was one of a committee of nine to build one. For six years, from 1775 to 1781 inclusive, he was elected a delegate to represent the parishes of Deerfield and Northwood in the congress at Exeter. He was also for two years, 1783-4, elected to the general assembly at Concord, N. H. His name appears as one of the signers to the Declaration made April 12, 1776, in response to a call from the Committee of Safety. For twenty years from 1775, he was town clerk. He was an active member of the church in Deerfield to which he belonged.

WILL OF JEREMIAH EASTMAN.

"In the name of God Amen. I, Jeremiah Eastman, now of Deerfield in the county of Rockingham and State of New Hampshire, being and enjoying at this time a considerable measure of bodily health and of a sound mind and memory, thanks be given to God for the same and calling to mind the Mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men to die, do make and ordain this my last will and Testament in manner and form following, (that is to say) I give & recommend my Soul into the hands of Almighty God that gave it, and my body I recommend to the earth to be buried in decent Christian burial at the discretion of my executor herein after named. As touching my worldly estate, I will & bequeathe the same in the following manner.

"Imprimis. I will that all my just debts & funeral charges be paid & discharged by my executor within a convenient time after my decease.

"Item: I give & bequeath to my beloved wife Anna Eastman the improvement of one third of my homestead farm on which I now live lying & being in Deerfield, so long as she remains my widow, including the southerly four room in my dwelling house & one third of the barn & also one cow & three sheep to be delivered her by my son Benjamin within two months after my decease & my will is that my said wife have the improvement of all my beds & bedding & all my household furniture except my desk to improve the above mentioned stock & household furniture during the term afore mentioned.

“Item : I give & bequeath to my son Jeremiah his heirs & assigns all the land I own at the northerly part of Pleasant Pond (so called) which belongs to the lots numbered twenty one & twenty two in the 7th range except the privilege of building half a mill on the outlet of said Pond, with a convenient mill yard. I also give him the said Jeremiah, all the rangeway at the northeasterly end of said two lits which was returned to me by the selectmen of Deerfield as satisfaction for a highway as may appear by Deerfield records & also the one half of my pew in Deerfield meeting house numbered thirty which with what I have heretofore given him by deed is his full share of my estate.

“Item : I give & bequeath my son Jacob Eastman his heirs & assigns five silver dollars to be paid by my executor within one year after my decease which with what I have already given him by deed is his full share of my estate.

“Item : I give & bequeath to my son Enoch Eastman his heirs & assigns five silver dollars to be paid by my executor within one year after my decease which with what I have already given him by deed is his full share of my estate.

“Item : I give & bequeath to my son Ephraim Eastman his heirs & assigns five silver dollars to be paid him by my executor within one year after my decease which with what I have already given him by deed is his full share of my estate.

“Item : I give and bequeath to my daughter Sarah Tirrel her heirs and assigns fifteen silver dollars to be paid her by my executor within one year after my decease, also my will is that she the said Sarah Tirrell have the full one half of my household furniture after my wife has improved the same herebefore mentioned in this my will.

“Item: I give & bequeath to my daughter Lydia Wallis her heirs & assigns fifteen silver dollars to be paid her by my executor within eighteen months after my decease. I also give to her the said Lydia the full one half of my household furniture after my wife has improved the same term before mentioned in this my will.

“Item: I give & bequeath to my son Benjamin Eastman his heirs and assigns all my homestead farm which I now live with the buildings thereon to come into the improvement of two thirds of the said premises at my decease the other third when my wife has improved at the term allotted her as aforesaid. I also give to him the said Benjamin his heirs & assigns all the land I own in the lot numbered twenty three in the eight range in Deerfield being by estimation about twenty three acres and ninety six rods be the same more or less, and also all my stock of cattle horses sheep & swine and my husbandry utensils & also my saddles bridles & also half the privilege of building a mill on the outlet of Pleasant Pond as hath been before reserved in my bequest to my son Benjamin the one half of my pew in Deerfield meeting house numbered thirty & also my desk. I further give unto my five sons viz Jeremiah, Jacob, Ephraim, Benjamin & Enoch or the surviving ones all my wearing apparel to be equely divided between them.

“Lastly, I make constitute & appoint my son Benjamin Eastman sole executor of this my last will and testament to whom I give all my estate not hereinbefore disposed of.

“In witness whereof I the said Jeremiah Eastman have herewith set my hand and seal this 27th day of March A. D. 1798.

“JEREMIAH EASTMAN. (Seal.)

"Signed sealed published & declared by the said Jeremiah Eastman to be his last will and testament in presence of us who in his presence in the presence of each other have hereunto subscribed our names the day & year above written.

129. Thomas Eastman⁵ (Roger⁴, Roger³, John², Roger¹), born in Newton, N. H., Oct. 11, 1740, o. s.; died in Newbury, Vt., Oct. 17, 1828; married in 1767, Sarah Ann Sargent, died in Newbury, Vt., March 25, 1831, aged 90 years. He settled in Weare, N. H., the year he was married. In 1797, he removed to Newbury, Vt., leaving Weare the day Daniel was married, driving an ox team with the goods, Daniel driving the cattle and sheep, the women on horseback. They purchased one of the best farms in Newbury, leading from the river to the town, now (1899) owned by the Carltons. Mr. Eastman was one of the first settlers of Weare. He was a Revolutionary soldier, and was at the surrender of Burgoyne. He was a hard working man, and was often heard to say that he never used spirituous liquors in all his life. In religion he was a Quaker or Friend. Thomas Eastman bought of John Kimball, of Amesbury, for 400 pounds old tenor, one half of lot 2, range 3, in Weare, and settled on it. His brother Samuel bought of John Moffatt, lot 3, range 2, in Weare, for £39, 1.10s, lawful money.

- 329. iii. Daniel⁶, b. Feb. 25, 1777; m. 1797, Jemima Worthley, and settled in Newbury, Vt., the same year.
- 330. iv. David⁶, b. —; m. Susau Ordway, and settled in Topsham, Vt.

130. Stephen Eastman⁵ (Roger⁴, Roger³, John², Roger¹), born in Newton, N. H., March 27, 1744; died in Lyndon, Vt.; married in 1767, Anna Colby, born Aug. 17, 1747, daughter and fourth child of Abraham Colby and Elizabeth, his wife. Anna was born in Amesbury, Mass. They lived in Newton, N. H., till 1778, when they removed to Bow, N. H., and bought the tract of land at the base of "Wood Hill."

The first definite account of Abraham Colby, who, with his five sons, settled on "Wood Hill," in Bow, N. H., in 1768, is to be found in the Amesbury, Mass., Records, where it is stated that the children of Abraham Colby and Elizabeth (Blaisdell) Colby went with him to Bow. Aug. 16, 1768, he bought of John Leavitt, of Stratham, part of lots Nos. 3 and 4, in the 14th range, being 120 acres, for £45, lawful money, equal to $150 at that time. The road through Bow was only a bridle path from Samuel Rogers', where Lewis C. Goodhue now (1899) lives, to Elisha Clough's and Francis Carr's, on the hill where the first meeting house was built, and extending on to where Bow Mills village is now located. Here on this land his five sons settled.

On the town records on file by the town of Bow, the name of Stephen Eastman appears as one of the signers of the Association Test. Imagine such a man, with four small children to support, the eldest not quite seven years of age, taking such a stand. It meant life or death to him. It is related that when he was past 80, he would, with staff in hand, every Sabbath, in fair or foul weather, walk six or eight miles and return, to attend the church to which he belonged. He was a shoemaker, and wished to have his son Stephen follow the same business, but it was distasteful to him; they had some trouble about it and the boy bolted. He went to his uncle Colby and conferred with him, and he advised him to make a bee, and fell ten acres of trees on his father's farm and follow farming. He was then only fifteen years of age, but followed the advice, and when his father came home from an absence of a few days and saw what had been done he exclaimed, "We are ruined!" But from this day things began to prosper better, and he admired the management of his son so well that in time he deeded all his property to him, expecting him to stay at home and care for him and his wife in their old age. After a while a new house was to be erected; one wanted it to face one way, and the other wanted it to face the other. The result was that Stephen, Jr., left the old home in Bow, and went to Vermont. He first went to Danville, looked over the ground, but not finding anything to his liking, he went to Sutton and bought one hundred acres, July 12, 1804. He moved his family there in February, 1806. He lived first in a neighbor's house a mile away from his purchase, but the sixteenth of June following raised a house on his own lot, and his son David was born the same day. When they moved into their new home, his wife carried the babe, and he the little girl, not quite two years old, and a bag of meal. When Stephen, Jr., left Bow, he had a deed of the property there, and when he had left home his father selected David, his youngest son, a man of amiable and even disposition, to stay and care for him in his old age, After Stephen had been in Vermont a few years, he saw it would be to the advantage for his father and brother to go to Vermont to live, and he selected a tract of land in the edge of Lyndon, and adjoining his farm, and then went to Bow for them; but no argument could convince them until he said, "You will be obliged to go, for I have sold and deeded the place over your heads." Then they concluded to go, which they did, including all the children except his second child, Hannah, who had married.

138. Cyprian Eastman⁵ (Jonathan⁴, Roger³, John², Roger¹), born in Norwich, Conn., in 1749; died in Bristol, Vt., May 23, 1798, from small pox contracted in Montreal, Canada. He removed from Norwich, Conn., to Rupert, Vt., in the early settlement of that town, and located on Bristol Flats, his brother Jonathan following soon after. He married Rosamond Nelson. He was one of the first selectmen in the town; was appointed one of a committee to lay out the first division of lots of land and roads in the town. In June, 1791, a militia company was organized and he was chosen captain. The captain was a good citizen and well esteemed. We have very little of his family record. He had ten children, of whom we have the names of the following:

CHILDREN.

- i. Bersheba⁶, b. —; m. Robert Dunshe. He was one of the first settlers of Bristol, Vt., was a good citizen and industrious man. He died from the effects of cancer.

A few years ago, Jane became insane and committed suicide, and in 1899, the youngest son, who was unmarried, committed suicide. Mr. Barnum died many years ago.

139. Bathsheba Eastman⁵ (Jonathan⁴, Roger³, John², Roger¹), born in Norwich, Conn., in 1751; died in Theresa, N. Y., about 1843; married Oliver Scott, of Bristol, Vt. He died soon after the Revolution. They had four sons and one daughter.

140. Jonathan Eastman⁵ (Jonathan⁴, Roger³, John², Roger¹), born in Norwich, Conn., in 1753; died in Bristol, Vt., Dec. 16, 1816; married 1st, Ruth Davis; 2d, Ruth Dean. He came when a young man to Rupert, Vt., soon after his brother, Cyprian, where he first located, but in 1791 removed to Bristol, where he always lived afterwards. By his first wife he had one daughter, and by his second wife five children (from Mrs. "Hemmingway's works" on Vermont). Another account says his first wife was a Miss Haynes. Mr. Eastman was a worthy citizen and was first representative in 1792, and again in 1795, and four years one of the selectmen. It is supposed he died in Bristol, as Mrs. Allen, granddaughter of his, says his second wife, Ruth Dean, removed to Ohio when his children, Sarah, William and Almond, were quite young, where the widow, William, and Sarah died.

"This day my age is eighty-eight,
How like a dream! how short the time!
The scenes and trials I've passed through
All lie before me to review,
The adage true in every land,
We're twice a child, and once a man.
May childhood's innocence be mine,
With age, experience, all combined.
Time swiftly passes on we see,
Waits not for you, waits not for me,
Then seek a city out of sight,
Where all is found that can delight."

176. Sarah Eastman⁵ (Ebenezer⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Concord, N. H., July 14, 1737; married in 1755, Capt. Daniel Chandler, born in Concord, N. H., Feb. 14, 1735. She died leaving a daughter, Sarah⁶, born in Concord, Dec. 15, 1756, published to Abner Flanders, of Concord, Aug. 14, 1773. Captain Chandler married 2d, Sarah Merrill, daughter of Dea. John Merrill, who kept the first ferry over the Merrimack in Concord. Captain Chandler was a Revolutionary soldier.

177. Stilson Eastman⁵ (Ebenezer⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Concord, N. H., Jan. 7, 1738; died in 1837; married a daughter of Capt. Nathaniel Hutchins. Mr. Eastman was a ranger under Lieut. John Stark; was in the bloody fight in Jan. 1757, when Major Rogers was twice wounded, and the command devolved upon Lieutenant Stark. Eastman related that on receiving his second wound, Major Rogers advised a retreat, but Stark, taking command, declared that he would shoot the first man that fled, and that he would fight, and "fight the enemy till death", and then if necessary, retreat. While Stark was speaking, a ball took off the lock of his gun, and at the same moment observing a Frenchman fall, he sprang forward, seized his gun and returned to his place and continued the fight. At Crown Point, General Amherst had command of the army. The General was so fond of milk that he kept a cow in camp, which had liberty to run at large to find the best feeding ground. It happened after a while that the cow was missing and could not be found. Soldiers were sent in all directions, but could not find her. At length Eastman found her, to the great delight of the General, who, as a reward, ordered Eastman's canteen to be filled. Eastman at this was as well pleased as the General, for no one loved the good "critter" better than he. The cow had strayed away into a piece of meadow where she found good feed. Well, for the sake of the good "critter" Eastman would occasionally drive the cow to the same place, where no one could find her but himself, and whenever he brought in the cow, he got his pay in the canteen. Mr. Eastman became embarrassed in business and lived a dissolute life until he was eighty years of age, when he was converted to religion and went to live with his son, Caleb, in Rumford, Me. In 1825, Caleb was allowed by the town twenty dollars for the support of his father.

178. Jonathan Eastman⁵ (Philip⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Concord, N. H., June 10, 1746; died in Concord, Oct. 19, 1834; married 1st, Jan. 5, 1769, Molly Chandler, died —; 2d, July 12, 1776, Esther Johnson, daughter of Francis Johnson, of Woburn, Mass. She died Sept. 17, 1834. Mr. Eastman was a man of robust frame and distinguished daring, active and enterprising. He was an ardent patriot; was in Capt. Joseph Abbott's company of volunteers that marched to reinforce the northern army September, 1777, and was ready to fight at any time afterwards for his country. Squire Eastman, as he was usually called, lived on the east side of the Merrimack river in Concord, on the spot near where the old garrison house stood, where his grandfather lived, and where all his children were born. He had but very little education, but learned to write on birch bark, and in later years was well posted in all political and public affairs. As illustrations of his enterprise and force of character, it is related that when a boy of fifteen years he was sent by his father on foot to Conway, N. H., driving two cows and two shoats the whole distance, and going by the way of Saco, Me. Near a solitary cabin in the woods, about half way to where he was to stop, he met a bear in the path, which he faced, till old bruin, put out of countenance, fled. He lodged in the cabin alone at night, and reached Conway in safety the next day.

Mr. Eastman's second wife was the daughter of Francis Johnson⁴, Uriah³, Major William², Captain Edward¹, who came from Hern Hill, County of Kent, England, in 1630, and settled in Woburn, Mass. He represented Woburn in Captain Eastman was a highly respected and useful citizen. He resided on the east side of the Merrimack river in Concord, in the ancient house which stood a few rods north of the railroad station at East Concord. He was a man of much decision, industrious and religious. He united with the church in 1808, and maintained a consistent Christian walk and conversation as long as he lived, leaving in property, character, and example, a valuable legacy to his children. She died July 8, 1827, aged 67.

182. Jane Eastman⁵ (Joseph⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Concord, N. H., Sept. 12, 1762; died in Peacham, Vt., Oct. 23, 1830; married March 15, 1781, Gen. William Chamberlain, born in Hopkinton, Mass., April 27, 1755; died in Peacham, Vt., Sept. 27, 1828 ; son of Samuel Chamberlain. General Chamberlain settled in Canterbury, N. H., with his parents. He took his bride on horseback to Peacham, where he was an early settler. The following will be found in the records of the Governor and Council of the State of Vermont, Vol. iv, page 105 :

“Gen. William Chamberlain volunteered in the army in 1775, and served as orderly sergeant in the invasion of Canada, suffering all sorts of privations and being one of nine officers and privates out of the company of 70, who survived to take part in the battle of Trenton, N. J. At the expiration of his enlistment, he returned to N. H., but on Burgoyne's invasion he again enlisted and was in the battle of Bennington, Vt., from which it is said he brought away some trophies of personal combat with his enemies. About 1781, he removed to Peacham, Vt., being then clerk of the proprietors of the town, where he held the office 12 years ; justice of the peace 24 years ; town representative 12 years ; chief justice of Caledonia Co., 17 years ; councillor of the state, 7 years ; Lieut. Gov., from 1813-1815 ; a delegate to the Constitutional Convention 1791-1814 ; presidential elector in 1800. A member of Congress two terms from 1803-5 and 1809-11. In private life he was upright, a friend of order, learning and religion. He lived to see the wilderness become a cultivated and populous region, and as a matter of far greater moment to himself, closed a long, useful and eventful life on earth in humble trust of the better life in heaven. He received his title as General, from commissions he held in the state militia from Major to Major-General.”

His Revolutionary record can be found on the New Hampshire Revolutionary Rolls in Vol. i, pages 194, 305, 304, and 465.

188. Obadiah Eastman⁵ (Obadiah⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Salem, N. H., April 27, 1747; died in Benton, N. H., Jan. 10, 1812; married in Salem, Nov. 19, 1767, Mehitable Merrill, daughter of Peter Merrill, born in Salem, N. H., April 16, 1747, died in Benton, Dec. 27, 1815. Mr. Eastman removed to Coventry, now Benton, N. H., in the early settlement of that town, and located on what is now known as High street, and about one mile from Warren Summit depot. He was chosen surveyor of Salem, N. H., where he lived in March, 1767; was chosen fence viewer March 31, 1779, and on July 13, 1780, was chosen or drawn as petit juror. When he first moved to Coventry he was chosen one of a committee to lot the town, and was its first surveyor. He called the first town meeting held in the town. He was a Revolutionary soldier; was in Capt. Jesse Page's company, Col. Jacob Gale's regiment, Aug. 5, 1778, as corporal; joined the army in Rhode Island, Aug., 1778, discharged Aug. 25, 1778. (N. H. Rev. Rolls, vol. ii, p. 568.) Mr. Eastman and his wife are buried in the old burying grounds on High street, in Benton, N. H. In 1892, Mr. Ira Whitcher erected a stone at his grave which reads: "Erected in 1892, by Ira Whitcher, in memory of one of the first settlers of Coventry." It seems that he went to Coventry before his family, as his daughter Mehitable was born in Salem in 1780, and he was in the war in 1778, from Haverhill, a town adjoining. The exact date of his going to Coventry is unknown.

190. Simeon Eastman⁵ (Obadiah⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Salem, N. H., Dec. 25, 1762; died in Landaff, N. H., Sept. 11, 1830; married Jan. 7, 1786, Anna Kimball, daughter of Reuben (Capt.) Kimball, born in Concord, Jan. 7, 1780; died in Landaff, N. H., Dec. 3, 1849. Mr. Eastman settled in Landaff, N. H., during the early settlement of that town. They lived at first in a log house, but in a few years built a good frame house, and a few years later a more commodious one, which for many years he kept open for the traveling public. The old town records show that year after year, at the annual town meetings, there was voted to Simeon Eastman, license to keep tavern the ensuing year. Some times the town meetings were held at the tavern and meetings for the election for the district comprising the towns of Landaff Franconia and Lincoln.

In 1818, his house was burned, Mr. Eastman escaping very severe burns in trying to save something. Mrs. Eastman and daughter, Lucinda, then about eighteen years of age, barely escaped with their lives. Mr. Eastman's loss was severely felt, there being no insurance, but he soon built another house, which is still standing (1899).

Mr. Eastman was a thrifty man, a man of unusual enterprise, a man of perfect integrity, genial, companionable, a good provider, and generous to those in need. Mrs. Eastman was one of the noble cooks in all that region and her fame reached far and near. Her marriage portion from her father was one barrel of pork, a barrel of beef, one cow and a yoke of oxen. A flock of sheep would have been added but for the bears and wolves in that section. They traveled through the wilderness driving the oxen, taking along the things for housekeeping her mother had given her. They always lived in Landaff, where all their children were born.

H., April 10, 1833; married Esther Farnum, daughter of Ephraim Farnum, born Oct. 25, 1772. The gravestone says his wife was Esther Lyford. He settled in Salisbury about 1797, as his first tax was paid that year. For a time he leased the Capt. John Webster mill, on Chance brook, in what is now Franklin, afterwards purchasing the mill and other buildings and three hundred acres of land of Bailey Bartlett, of Haverhill, Mass., for $775, the deed bearing date of Aug. 27, 1803. He was a man of extraordinary business capacity, upright, honest, and interested in every good work. The land upon which the Congregational church at Franklin stands, was a gift from him to the society, as was also the school lot, "given for educational purposes." Uncle Ebenezer, as he was familiarly called, was always ready to do what he could for every moral and religious enterprise, and was the prime mover in getting the town of Franklin incorporated. He built a tavern on the site of the Webster House. After his death his widow built the Rev. A. H. Martin house, where she died Oct. 1, 1854, aged 82 years.

214. Richard Eastman⁵ (Richard⁴, Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born in Pembroke, N. H., April 20, 1747; died in North Conway, N. H., Dec. 6, 1826; married 1st, in 1767, Abiah Holt, in Pembroke, N. H. She died in North Conway, March 1, 1790. He married 2d, Aug. 27, 1791, widow Susannah Durgin, of Lee, N. H. (nee Runnels); died in North Conway, N. H., May 29, 1849. Mr. Eastman removed from Pembroke, N. H., with his father, to Conway, N. H., then an unbroken wilderness, the pathway being marked by spotted trees. He first lived in a log house, where his second child was born, viz.: Jonathan, he being the first white child born in the town. Richard, with his brother Noah, soon received from their father the property he purchased of Thomas Chadburn, including the first "frame" house built in the town, and soon after, Richard, Jr., and wife Abiah, his brother Noah, and Hannah Holt (whom Noah afterwards married), occupied this house. When Richard, Sr., and his sons first went to Conway, they settled where they could find buildings, but they soon found that on account of the spring freshets everything was carried away, and so removed to higher ground. Richard, Jr., moved a house from the intervale to the "mill" bridge, where seventeen of his eighteen children were born. Susannah Runnels had by her first husband, Benjamin Durgin, two daughters, Susan Durgin, who married Abiatha Eastman, Jr., and Lydia Durgin, who married Job Eastman. Richard, Jr., had great grandchildren older than his youngest child.

- iii. Polly⁶, b. Feb. 17, 1772; died Aug. 19, 1859; m. Amos Barnes, a Revolutionary soldier, whose father was killed in the French war. Amos enlisted in the Revolutionary army when he was eighteen years old. He was in the battle of Bunker Hill, in the retreat from Canada, and with Washington at the battle of Trenton. In January, 1778, he enlisted for the third time, joined General Washington's army at Valley Forge, and served for two years. In 1789, he was with General Sullivan in the Indian country, and for two months was on half allowance of rations. In 1780 he returned to Concord, and shortly afterwards went to Conway, N. H., where he was married. Lieutenant Barnes was also an officer in the state militia, and lieutenant of a volunteer company of the war of 1812. Of this family but little is known, but he had a son, Richard E., who was an honored veteran of the war of 1812, living to a great age, dying only a few years ago.

215. Job Eastman⁵ (Richard⁴, Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born in Pembroke, N. H., July 26, 1751; died in Norway, Me., Feb. 28, 1845, aged 95 years; married in Conway, and removed to Norway, Me., in the early settlement of that town. He had no children. He was forty years town clerk. He taught the first man's school in the town in 1803. He was one of the petitioners of Cummings' and Lee's grants in the town in 1795, treasurer of Norway in 1797, treasurer and selectman in 1798. In 1843, Mr. Eastman's house caught fire in the dead of winter, and he, his wife and another inmate escaped with nothing but their night clothes. Mr. Eastman was nearly helpless from old age, and his wife with extreme difficulty dragged him from the house and through the deep snow to the barn yard. They were exposed to the extreme cold of a winter's night for a considerable time before help arrived, when they were taken to the house of a neighbor. Mr. Eastman's feet were frozen in a shocking manner, but he recovered and survived two years. They had no children.

216. Noah Eastman⁵ (Richard⁴, Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born in Pembroke, N. H., March 20, 1753; died Aug. 28, 1829; married Hannah Holt, born Feb. 28, 1758; died April 15, 1820. Hannah was sister of Abiah, who married Noah's brother, Richard. Mr. Eastman resided in Conway, N. H.

217. Daniel Eastman⁵ (Richard⁴, Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born in Pembroke, N. H., April 21, 1766; died in Lovell, Me., Jan. 16, 1844; married Sarah Whiting, she died in Lovell, Jan. 19, 1806, aged 44 years. He lived in Lovell, Me., but it is not known at what date he went there, but he was town clerk in Lovell for the years of 1803, 4 and 5. His fine penmanship, at that time, showed him to have been a man well skilled in the use of the old time goose quill with which he wrote. The names and dates of the births of his children on the books are of his own handwriting. It is possible that his children were born in Lovell. For the last few years of his life he was blind. Mr. Eastman was a Revolutionary soldier. His name appears on the Revolutionary rolls of Massachusetts in the secretary of state's office, Boston, as being under Lieutenant Farrington, Fryeburg, Me. The last years of his life were spent with his son Phineas, who lived on "Eastman's Hill," Lovell, Me.

219. Jeremy Eastman⁵ (Richard⁴, Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born in Fryeburg, Me., April 25, 1771; died in Stow, Me., Oct. 8, 1846; married Betsey Kilgore, born April 2, 1776, died in Stow, Me., Feb. 16, 1873, age ninety-six years, ten months, fourteen days. She was a sister of James Kilgore, a Revolutionary soldier in the war that tried men's souls. Mr. Eastman was a farmer. The first years of his life were passed in Conway, N. H., where his first children were born. From here he moved to Fryeburg, Me., residing on what is well known as Christian Hill, where most likely his last eight children were born, as their names are found on the town's books. His last place of residence was in the town of Stow, Me., where he died. His old family Bible, now in possession of one of his great-grandchildren, shows very plainly the marks of time and frequent usage; and here within is to be seen the complete register of his family made by his own plain and legible handwriting. In the record of his decease, the prefix of "Dea." is added to his name.

H., Feb. 8, 1774, Elizabeth Searle, of Hollis, born July 26, 1748. He was a Revolutionary soldier from Bath, N. H. He enlisted in Capt. Joseph Hutchins' company, under the command of Major-General Gates, in the northern department, engaged Aug. 18, 1777; discharged Sept. 10, 1777. He was also in Capt. Samuel Young's company, Col. Timothy Bedel's regiment. Also a scout at another time. Also he was in Capt. Samuel Young's company, Col. Timothy Bedel's regiment, for an expedition against Canada; pay commenced Feb. 28, 1778; original pay-roll in the pension office, Washington, D. C. His military record can be found on the New Hampshire Revolutionary rolls, Vol. ii, pages 279 and 589; Vol. iii, page 307; Vol. iv, page 114. He went with his parents to Bath in the early settlement of the town in 1767. He built the first mill in Bath, situated on Pettyborough brook, so called. He paid a visit in 1774 to his uncle Amos, living in Hollis, and while there became acquainted with his to-be wife and married her in Hollis and started the same day on horseback, his wife on a pillion, for his future home in Bath. Mr. Eastman was in the same company in the war of '76 as Nathaniel Rix, where a long life friendship was formed which was never interrupted during life. With the exception of a short period when Nathaniel Rix was in Canada, they always resided near each other. They, with their wives, died in the same house and lie buried in the same grounds in North Littleton, N. H.

1853. He married 1st, Azubah Snow, daughter of Nathaniel Snow, the first settler in Bethlehem, N. H. Mr. Snow was a surveyor, and surveyed the most of the town. Mr. Snow had a daughter, Hahala, who married Major Amos Wheeler; another, Jerusha, married Dea. Thomas Hale. A son, Asa, lived on the Wheeler place. Another son lived on the hill where the rose bushes are now growing from the same roots. Moses married 2d, Lois Martin, born May 13, 1782. Moses was a shoemaker, and first lived in Bethlehem, N. H., where he was a sealer of leather. He removed to Lyman, N. H., and later to Haverhill. When Moses was 93 or 94 years old, he paid a visit to his grandchildren in Massachusetts, and after his arrival home made several pairs of custom boots. But few records have been kept in this family, consequently but little can be obtained.

243. Benjamin Eastman⁵ (Benjamin⁴, Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born in New Milford, Conn., Oct. 3, 1759; died in Cornwall, Canada, Oct. 2, 1836; married Mary Waterbury, born in Nova Scotia. Benjamin was a Tory. He went with his parents to Vermont and settled in Arlington during the early settlement of that town. At a convention of delegates at a meeting held in Washington, Vt., on the 15th day of June, 1777, the town of Arlington was not represented. They had suffered much from New York, and it would have been difficult to specify wherein the king had harmed them. The king had given them their farms at a nominal price, and they did not think it right to rebel against a king who had done them no harm. Perhaps one-half of the people were on either side. The British army of more than seven thousand were on their way from the north and were creating alarm. Samuel Adams, about this time, or a little later, formed a company of Tories gathered from Arlington, Manchester, Sangate and from some of the other places for the purpose of co-operating with Burgoyne's army. Their place of rendezvous was at Abiel Hawley's tavern, which was, strange as it may appear, used by the patriots for a similar purpose. The settlers were soon startled by the abduction of Phineas

Hurd, son-in-law of John Hawley, of Arlington. Hurd was a Loyalist and owned one of the best farms in Arlington. On a certain occasion, he, with a company, including Benjamin Eastman, of Arlington, went to Sangate, an adjoining town, and persuaded the inhabitants to deliver up their arms, that they might be in no condition to fight. The arms were eventually used against them by the Tories. For this Eastman was arrested and reported to General Lincoln. Eastman took the oath of allegiance and was released. It is said by his descendants that he fought at Saratoga in the British army, and was taken prisoner, and after his release, he, with his brother, Amherst, traveled through the woods to Canada, and settled in Cornwall. He paid his brothers a visit in Herkimer county, N. Y., and urged without success to have one of them settle in Cornwall near him. He became very wealthy, and offered his brother a fine farm if he would remove to Canada. He had a family of nineteen children.

Sept 5th 1782 in ye 4th Book folio 523."

254. Joseph Eastman⁵ (Joseph⁴, Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born in Connecticut in 1756 ; died in Marshall, N. Y., in March, 1844 ; married 1st, Hannah Martin Warner, born in Connecticut, and died about 1832 ; married 2d, widow Elizabeth Paddock, who survived him a few years. He removed from Connecticut about 1784, to Brothers-town, now Marshall, N. Y. Here he purchased of the Government one hundred and forty-four acres of land at fifty cents per acre. He built a log house and cleared up his land and burned coal and paid for his land from the proceeds. The name of Joseph Eastman, Jr., appears on the Revolutionary rolls of Connecticut in a list of men from Ashford, who marched for the relief of Boston in the Lexington alarm, in April, 1775 ; was in service sixteen days. Joseph and his wives lie in a small plot of ground taken off his home farm, about two miles from the village of Waterville, N. Y. He lived to be loved and respected by all with whom he came in contact.

The following story is told by his daughter, Saphronia, who is living in Canandaigua, N. Y., at the age of ninety-four (1900) :

At the time Danbury, Conn., was burnt, her grandfather lived a few miles north of that place, and he, with his three sons, Nathaniel, Joseph, and Hezekiah, were called out with the militia to repel or capture the " Red Coats," who had succeeded in burning Danbury. A Tory family lived nearly opposite Joseph's house, and they opened their house and made preparations to welcome the British when they came ; but not so with the Eastman's. Abram Daton, the youngest, was sick at home with his mother, who, fearing harm, saddled the family horse, hitched him to the back door, put up some provisions and things she would need, intending to get the sick boy on to the horse and start for the hills as soon as the " Red Coats " came in sight. Soon she saw a single horseman coming, who informed her the raiders had been captured and there was no more danger from them. The Tory family across the way shut their doors, closed their windows and were seen no more that day. Saphronia says her father was in the Revolutionary war three years, but no record of it is in the archives of Connecticut. She says also that he was a pensioner.

* The compiler had in his possession for several years the record of John and Peter Eastman, and searched all that time to find some of their descendants who could name their father and mother. Finally he found one who said their parents were Joseph and Phebe Hendricks, and lived in Marshall, N. Y. Mrs. Saphronia Galpin, now over ninety years of age, says there were no such children in Joseph's family, but when the compiler obtains records from parties corroborative of other records he has, he is bound to believe there were such children. Miss Sands, of Meriden, Conn., had in her possession for a long time the name of Joseph's wife as Phebe Hend— (the balance of the name torn off the records), and she supposed her name was Hendricks, because there were families by that name in Connecticut where Joseph lived, and one of the descendants of John (255) wrote the name in full, which was the first time we had her name spelled in full. John and Peter never lived in Marshall, N. Y.

256. Peter Eastman⁵ (Joseph⁴, Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born — ; died in Attica, N. Y. ; married Phebe Filmore ; settled in Granville, N. Y., soon removed to Attica, N. Y.

Abram Dayton went with his parents to Marshall, N. Y., in the early settlement of the town, where the whole family settled within two miles of each other, and all lie in a small plot of ground taken off the old homestead. He was always known as "Dayton," and the schoolhouse situated at the fork of the road where he settled, is known to-day as the "Daytonville" schoolhouse. On his gravestone it says, "Abraham D. Eastman, died Feb. 25, 1850."

258. Phebe Eastman⁵ (Joseph⁴, Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born in New Fairfield, Conn. ; married in New Milford, April 9, 1778, Paul Wellman. She died there during the winter of 1790-91, and he married 2d, Nov. 8, 1791, Abigail Wheeler, by whom he had six children. Paul was descended from a long line of English ancestors, from Sir Richard Ward, of Harleston and Homersfield, Suffolk, Eng., Sir Roger Greenville, Edmund Sherman, of Dedham, Eng., the ancestor of the famous Sherman family of America. Paul Wellman enlisted in the spring of 1775, when only 17 years of age, in Capt. Phineas Porter's company, of Waterbury, Conn., of the first regiment, Col. David Wooster, of New Haven. The regiment marched via Albany to Lake Champlain, where it was at the expiration of his enlistment, and was discharged Dec. 14, 1775. He enlisted again, April 8, 1776, in Capt. David Smith's company, for one year, Colonel Elmore, of Sharon. He enlisted again Jan. 10, 1777, in Capt. Aaron Stevens' fifth company of Killingworth, seventh regiment, Col. Heman Swift. This time he enlisted for three years. The regiment fought at Germantown, where it suffered some loss ; wintered at Valley Forge, 1777-78, and June 26, 1778, he was engaged in the battle of Monmouth, and during the summer was encamped at White Plains, N. Y. They wintered (1778-79) at Reading, Conn., and during the next summer of 1779, served on the east side of the Hudson. The regiment went into winter quarters, 1779-80, at Morristown Huts, where he was discharged Jan. 10, 1780, his term of enlistment having expired. Paul was a pensioner. In 1798-1800 he removed to Cairo, Oneida county, N. Y., leaving his son Hezekiah bound out, and it is said he left also a daughter Phebe bound out, taking all his other children with him. In the autumn of 1810, he removed to Paris, Oneida county, N. Y., and later removed to Wolcott. In the fall of 1820, his wife died and he married 3d, Mrs. Mary Thayer.

Soon after his last marriage, Paul and his new wife and her son with his wife, removed to Mount Morris, Livingston county, N. Y., where his 3d wife soon died and he returned to Mentz (?), Cayuga county, where he was living when his last pension was paid in March, 1829, and where he died.

H., Feb. 10, 1766, Parker Stephens, son of William and Mary (Tucker) Stephens, of Gloucester, Mass. Mr. Stephens married 2d, widow Marian Tilton, by whom he had no children. He died Oct. 15, 1818, by drinking oil of tansy through mistake. Mr. Stephens lived in Hampstead, N. H., where all his children were born. In 1787, he removed to Piermont, where he purchased a tract of land consisting of five hundred acres, which he in time divided among his sons. Soon after his going to Piermont in 1787, he petitioned the general court to be allowed to run a ferry across the Connecticut river on his farm. Mr. Stephens was an enterprising man, and of great force of character. His first wife died Feb. 29, 1784, his second, March 10, 1821, aged seventy-five years.

She was the daughter of John and Grace (Wright) Barker, formerly of Hanover, Mass. John Barker, with his father, owned and worked a foundry for casting bells, etc., and during the Revolution cast cannon for the army. In after years the works were destroyed by fire, and soon after the family removed to Maine. Mrs. Eastman received her name from her grandmother, Ann Carr, daughter of Sir John Carr, son of Sir Robert Carr, who was appointed one of a commission of four to settle a controversy between Connecticut and Massachusetts, as to the ownership of Rhode Island. This decision was rendered to King Charles, dated at Warwick, April 4, 1665. It is told by the family that Sir Robert Carr was the first governor of Rhode Island, but it is not so. William Coddington was the first governor of Rhode Island. Caleb Carr, probably a son of Sir Robert, was elected governor in May, 1695, and died while in office, making for him who died while in office. Mr. Eastman resided in Dresden, Mt. Vernon, and Avon, Me.

288. Joel Eastman⁵ (Edward⁴, Ebenezer³, Samuel², Roger¹), born in Kingston, N. H., Nov. 23, 1760; died May 23, 1849; married April 6, 1785, Betsey Pettingill, daughter of David and Betsey (Heath) Pettingill, born April 22, 1763 ; died Sept. 30, 1867, aged one hundred and five years and nine months. They lived in Salisbury, N. H. He removed from Kingston to Salisbury with his parents during the early settlement of that town. He built a large set of buildings which were destroyed by fire in the winter of 1882. He was one of the most wealthy farmers in the town, and a prominent citizen, enjoying the respect and good-will of his townsmen, and all who knew him bear testimony to his uprightness of character. For more than forty years he was a member of the Congregational church. His wife when quite young rode from her home in Rockingham county to Salisbury on a pillion with her uncle. She was one of a number of young girls who discovered the lifeless body of an infant under a loose floor in a building in South Hampton, N. H., connected with a schoolhouse where Ruth Blay was teaching. She was then about five years of age. Miss Blay was arrested, tried and convicted for concealing the death of an infant child. She was executed in Dec., 1768. The sheriff who executed her was Thomas Parker. The fact that the discovery was made by Betsey and her schoolmates, in consequence of which Miss Blay was exposed, tried, and executed, cast a gloom over Mrs. Eastman's whole life, dwelling upon it with much sadness.

He served as a substitute for his brother Thomas, at the battle of Bunker Hill, and was for a number of years in the service. He was a pensioner till his death. While in the army he obtained information from the books of the army physicians that was of great importance to those afflicted with that sullen disease, the mumps, to which hundreds have testified. The secret has been in the possession of certain members of the family to this time. In the spring of 1791 he settled in Bow, N. H., purchasing the farm of Richard Dow, and now (1899) owned by his grandson, Charles F. Hammond, near Wood Hill in Bow.

367. William Dean Eastman⁶ (Jonathan⁵, Jonathan⁴, Roger³, John², Roger¹), born in Bristol, Vt., Sept. 11, 1797; died in North Royalton, Cuyahoga county, O., in 1854; married Feb. 9, 1823, Lois Harvey, born in Whitehall, N. Y., July 22, 1800, died in Cleveland, O. She was the daughter of Moses and Deborah (Standish) Harvey. Between the birth of his first and second children, in the spring of 1829, he with his widowed mother and child, Rollin, removed to Ohio and settled in the town of Royalton, at that time a wilderness. They started from Vermont with a one-horse chaise and a two-horse team. They were about six weeks on the road. They stopped at Whitehall, N. Y., to visit Mrs. Eastman's parents or friends, the Harveys. They went on to Cleveland, where they found but few houses, perhaps a half dozen at that time, and here they crossed the Cuyahoga creek on a raft, where the viaduct is now. From here they started for their destination, and when they got as far as Parmalee there was no road, and the trees were marked for guidance. At night they could get no further with their team, and so had to leave their wagons and go the rest of the way, about twelve or fifteen miles, on horseback. They rode all night, and arrived in the morning. Here they found friends who went back with ox teams and managed to take their goods and wagons to where they settled. Mr. Eastman built him a nice house where he lived and died, March 27, 1854.

Mr. Eastman removed to Ohio when a young man and settled in North Royalton; married there and soon after removed to Wisconsin, in the fall of 1846, and settled on a farm in Lyndon, where he remained many years; when late in life he removed to Dundee, Fon du Lac county. When he began pioneer life in Wisconsin, he had a family of seven children, and the inhabitants at that early date were principally Indians, with now and then a white settler. There were ten lodges within sight of his house, and fully one hundred Indians living on the farm when he took possession of it. He was an intelligent and enterprising citizen; devoted to the interest of the county, taking a prominent part in the government of the same. He was deeply interested in the cause of education, his influence doing much towards establishing excellent schools at an early date. In politics he was a Republican, in religion, an earnest, humble Christian.

Dr. Eastman served as rector in churches of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maine, New York, Vermont, Kansas, and Michigan, as well as in Canada. In politics he was a Democrat, with Prohibition sympathies. About fifty years ago he became a member of the Masonic order, belonging to the Commandery at Montpelier, Vt., and filled the position of Grand Prelate of the Grand Commandery of Vermont, for a period of two years. He took the Commandery degree at Saratoga, N. Y. He had also taken the fourteen degrees of the Scottish Rite Masonry, being a member of the Lodge of Perfection. For a number of years he held fraternal relations with the I. O. O. F. In 1884, he removed to Michigan and became pastor of the Holy Trinity Mission, at Benton Harbor, there being no church edifice there at that time. Through his efforts funds were secured, and a comfortable brick church was erected, and he remained its pastor until June, 1891, when he retired from the ministry, after having spent fifty-seven years in pastoral work. Dr. Eastman went to pay a visit to his native place in 1891, after giving up active work in the ministry, and while there he suffered a slight stroke of paralysis, and was for some time quite ill. He returned home as soon as able to travel. In June, 1895, he suffered another shock of paralysis, from which he never recovered. The following September he fell and broke his ankle, which was a severe shock to his enfeebled constitution.

He recovered somewhat from the accident, and was able to sit around the house most of the time until about a week before his death, which marked the close of an active, useful life, that deserves the highest reward eternity can give. He was a great Hebrew scholar, well versed in Greek and Latin. He was buried in Lake View Cemetery, in Burlington, Vt.

William Patrick, Dec. 30, 1823, Dorothy DeForrest, born in Canterbury, N. H., May 30, 1796, died in East Concord, July 8, 1836; 2d, Lucinda Buswell, who survived him and married Deacon James Carlton. Dorothy DeForrest was a perfect blonde. She was too pretty, her husband said, to be smoked up over a fireplace, and so the first cooking-stove came to East Concord. She was, however, a very domestic woman, a great economist, and tireless worker. Mr. Eastman was a man of extensive business. He inherited his father's large and fertile farm, and also manufactured plaster, and ran a grist and bark mill besides. The old home, just across the track at East Concord railroad station, is still standing. They were members of the Congregational church, and among its most generous supporters. In fact, it was so unusual a thing that none of them attended service, that it is said the family horse, one Sunday morning, not being called on as usual, broke from the pasture, took his accustomed place, and remained quietly during the service, and then trotted home. Mr. Eastman was the prime mover in the Sewall's Falls canal enterprise, and the failure of that project by the opening of the Boston & Montreal Railroad, swept away one half of his wealth. The old ditch is still to be seen west of the railroad track. His second wife, Miss Lucinda Buswell, of Windham, Vt., dispensed the most generous and dignified hospitality until a good old age.

495. Samuel Eastman⁶ (Simeon⁵, Obadiah⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Landaff, N. H., Oct. 1, 1789; died in Elkhorn, Wis., in 1858, of pneumonia; married May 11, 1831, Mary Pell, born Sept. 15, 1796, died Nov. 27, 1860. When quite young Mr. Eastman went to Ohio, visited Cincinnati, Columbus, Urbana, and other cities. He contracted malaria, which nearly cost him his life. He was obliged to remain in Urbana nearly a year to recover his health, after which he went down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to Natchez, where he taught a large and successful school. Here he became converted, and was baptized in the "Father of Waters" and became a member of the Baptist church. He was soon afterward licensed to preach. From there he went to Philadelphia, where he studied theology with Dr. Stoughton, then eminent in the denomination, and pastor of the Samson-street church in Philadelphia. He received an appointment from the Foreign Missions to preach in Mississippi and Louisiana, and was for a time very successful, but was stricken down with yellow fever, and after partial recovery, with congestion and bilious fever, in which he was quite given up to die, he said, "After I had familiarly shaken hands with death, I was suffered to crawl up a few steps from the borders of the grave among the living." Then fever and ague took hold of him, and he in desperation barely escaped from the country with his life. After recruiting somewhat he became pastor of a Baptist church in Cincinnati, O., where he spent three years of great pleasure and prosperity, but ill health coming upon him again he was obliged to resign his charge. Then he spent a year at the mineral springs in Harrodsburg, Ky. From there he went to New York city, where he planted the Stanton-street church, since become one of the largest and most flourishing churches in the city. There he remained several years, when again, on account of failing health, he returned to his native town with the intention of spending the remainder of his life there. He built a pleasant home on a part of his father's farm, and spent a few years in gardening and farming in a small way. After preaching in Landaff and adjoining towns, and as his health improved, held pastorates in Haverhill and Meredith, N. H., and in Rutland and Groton, Vt. In 1844 he removed to Wisconsin, and died there. He was highly esteemed as a preacher; was a fine scholar for the times; made special study of French, Latin, Greek, and Hebrew, and was well versed in medical science, and had a remarkable retentive memory, being able to repeat page after page from his favorite authors.

497. Fanny Eastman⁶ (Simeon⁵, Obadiah⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born in Landaff, N. H., July 1, 1793; died May 14, 1825; married Dec. 25, 1817, Rev. Jacob Sanborn, born in Unity, N. H., May 16, 1788, died March 16, 1867, at Concord, N. H. As a result of pious training, Mr. Sanborn early felt attracted to the ministry, and joined the Methodist church at 18 years of age. In order to test his convictions, he preached one year at his own expense ; his labors proving successful, he joined, in 1812, the Methodist Conference. From that time until 1850, he gave himself up to his life work, filling, in thirty-eight years of ministerial duty, many important pulpits in New England. He preached in Portland, Me., in Exeter, N. H., and in Providence, R. I. He was for four years presiding elder in the New Hampshire district. In Massachusetts, he preached in many cities. After his regular labors as a pastor had ceased, he continued frequently to occupy the pulpit until 1863, closing his ministerial career where he began it, fifty-two years before. As a pulpit orator he had marked ability ; a man of dignity and of noble stature, fine voice, clear thought, and impressive utterance. In business affairs he was a model of punctuality and good faith. The soul of honor himself, it grieved him much to hear of improvidence, of business dishonor, or even of apparent disregard of pecuniary obligations, in any one bearing the Christian name. By strict economy he was able often to fill out from his own limited means, the inadequate salaries so common in his time. During all his career, he contributed to the charities of his church, and never, even in his old age, received any aid from them. A stalwart and brave religious teacher, he belonged to that heroic age of the New England Methodist church, and was prominent among the moral heroes of his day. Mr. Sanborn married 2d, June 21, 1826, Eliza Robinson, died March 25, 1888.

Besides these he had four daughters.

512. William Kimball Eastman⁶ (David⁵, Moses⁴, Ebenezer³, Philip², Roger¹), born March 5, 1794, at the "old homestead" of his father, in Loudon, N. H. He was the fourth child of David Eastman ; his mother's name was Ruth, daughter of Ezra and Phebe (Whittemore) Carter and granddaughter of Daniel and Hannah (Fowler) Carter. (Corrected from page 165.) Ruth was born in Concord, July 6, 1765, and died at Loudon, Oct. 18, 1822. William

K. received his education first at the town school of Loudon, and afterwards attended the high school at Concord for several winters. At the age of seventeen he served an apprenticeship of one year in the bakery of Horn & Robertson, of Concord. He then went to Limerick, Maine, and spent two years learning the trade of tanner and currier. At twenty he went to Conway and built a tannery. In 1816, he returned to Loudon, and on Dec. 8, 1816, married Rhoda Messer, daughter of John and Olive (Ladd) Messer. She was born at Salem, N. H., Aug. 18, 1797. They went at once to Conway and in two years moved into the house which was their home for fifty-four years and where all of their children were born.

The house is located on the principal street of the village, nearly opposite the church. It is a large two-story white structure, with green blinds, surrounded by large beautiful trees. There were ten acres of land about the house, most of which was in the rear, extending towards the Swift and Saco rivers. The view from the back of the house was superb, the mountains and intervalles of Conway first coming into view, and in the distance the White mountains. In addition to the ten acre garden about the house Mr. Eastman had a good farm, about fifty acres, on the intervalle, which was always highly cultivated.

He continued in the tannery business, to which he added shoemaking and harness making until about the year 1835, when he opened a general merchandise store, and continued in the trade for a number of years. He built a paper mill, which, after running two weeks, burned, when he built a second and ran the business for many years. He was deputy sheriff for nine years; he represented the town of Conway in the legislature for two terms, beginning 1842, being elected on the Democratic ticket. In June, 1842, he introduced and had passed a bill to incorporate the "South Conway Seminary," which was established soon after. This institution became quite celebrated, and educated many who afterwards became quite distinguished. The first principal was a Mr. Walsh, who was for some time interpreter to Napoleon.

Mr. Eastman also held many other positions of honor and trust, such as lieutenant in the militia, selectman, juryman, coroner, and was several times delegate from Carroll county to the Democratic state convention.

Many anecdotes are related of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Eastman, among which was an eventful trip to Concord, in June, 1825, to meet General LaFayette. Another was the terrible catastrophe to the Willey family, Mr. Eastman being the first man on the ground after it occurred.

On May 14, 1870, Mrs. Eastman died, and ten years later Mr. Eastman sold his estate in Conway, and moved to Minneapolis, where he made his home with his son, Haskett D. Eastman. On Oct. 18, 1887, Mr. Eastman died.

In the Minneapolis Saturday Evening Spectator of Oct. 22, 1887, appeared the following article, written by the talented Viola F. Miner:

"A PATRIARCH DEPARTED.

"In the death of the venerable William K. Eastman, in his ninety-fourth year, not only the relatives and intimate friends of the deceased, but all who were so fortunate as to know him, have sustained a deep loss. And yet, dearly as he was beloved, his death was singularly free from those scenes of gloom and of anguish which nearly always shroud the portal of the tomb. He, rather, seemed to go up the shining way, and there remain behind him some rays of the glorious light into which he has entered.

"Mr. Eastman's birthplace was Loudon, N. H., but he belonged to the old family of Concord Eastmans, well known in New England for their high social position and respectability. His boyhood and youth were spent in Concord, but after he married Miss Rhoda Messer, he settled in Conway, N. H., where the greater part of his long and useful life was passed. Among Mr. Eastman's earlier business enterprises were the carrying on of a large tannery and a boot and shoe factory. Later, he built two paper mills and conducted a flourishing business for many years. During all this time, his industry and sobriety doubtless contributed to build up those lasting qualities of mind and body which so eminently distinguished him in his 'green old age.'

"Besides attending to his own private affairs with commendable zeal, Mr. Eastman was frequently called upon by his fellow citizens to occupy many public positions of trust and honor. For several years he was a respected member of the legislature of his native state. He was an old-time Democrat, and clung to his early predilections up to his latest day. When Cleveland was elected, the old gentleman sat down and wrote him a letter of congratulation, which the President honored with a personal reply from his own hand. He would have paid his respects to President and Mrs. Cleveland during their recent visit to our city, had his strength permitted.

Twenty years ago Mr. Eastman and wife happily celebrated their golden wedding at the old home in Conway. At the same time he united with the Methodist church of that place, though before his death he was led to accept the Swedenborgian faith. But he never forgot the old church, and only a few days ago sent the officers a check for a thousand dollars. And only the other day, also, he sent in his seventy-third annual subscription to the New Hampshire Patriot.

"A few years after the death of his wife he came to Minneapolis in order to be with his children, all of whom had gradually established homes in this city, principally on the East Side and Nicollet Island, John W. Eastman coming first in the year of '54. He had four sons and four daughters: Haskett D., John W., William W., Mrs. Annette Thompson (deceased), Mrs. D. A. Secombe, Mrs. C. C. Eastman, Mrs. John DeLaittre, and George H. Eastman.

"Although an old gentleman when he came to Minneapolis, Mr. Eastman has, nevertheless, taken a lively interest in the affairs of the city, and has made a host of devoted friends. His vigorous health and temperate habits preserved his mental and physical forces to a wonderful degree, and enabled him to pass his old age in comfort and happiness. He had that rare faculty of passing through life without worrying. In company he was always genial and entertaining, one of those choice spirits who help to make life worth living. One of his grandsons, Dr. Arthur Eastman, of St. Paul, had a photograph taken a few months ago in which four generations were represented.

"For some weeks past Mr. Eastman suffered a good deal of pain. There was no disease — there was a general breaking down of the tissues as a result of old age; but his mind was perfectly bright and clear to the last, and he often expressed himself as contentedly 'waiting for the Master to call.' At the last, all was painless, and he sweetly sank to sleep like a tired child — fitting end of a well-spent life.

"John W. Eastman left for the East, Wednesday night, and accompanied the remains to the old home at Conway, where the friends of other days will help lay them to rest amid the scenes of his youth and manhood. When another spring smiles upon the New England hills, his grave will be green, but we know that

"Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul."

The following obituary notice was printed in the Pioneer Press, of March 2, 1882, on the death of Mrs. Charles M. Thompson :

“END OF A NOBLE LIFE.

“In the death of Mrs. Charles M. Thompson, the daughter of Mr. W. K. Eastman, and sister of John, Haskett, William and George Eastman, and of Mrs. David Secombe, Mrs. John DeLaittre, and Mrs. Caroline Eastman, and the foster mother of Mrs. George B. Eustis, of this city, the Pioneer Press is compelled to record the sorrowful ending of a truly noble life. Mrs. Thompson was one of those lovely characters whom we too rarely meet, combining in her large and generous nature the qualities of a devoted daughter, a faithful wife, an affectionate sister, a self-sacrificing mother, a loyal friend, and in every relation of life a refined and accomplished woman. Her death is the first to break the ranks of the children of this large and attached family, whose father is still among them at the ripe age of eighty-eight years, and who are inconsolable over their terrible loss. The close heart-ties that will be broken by the death of this lovely woman are many, and are included in a large circle of devoted friends who knew her but to love her.”

Mr. Eastman was born either in Conway, N. H., or Fryeburg, Me., which latter place he settled in early. He was a farmer and lumberman; a real live man, a man of business, keeping a large stock of cattle and horses and doing a large business lumbering during the winter time. In 1833, he built the first brick house in Lovell. The brick he made himself at the old brick yard just above the center of the town. This house is now standing on Eastman Hill, so named for him, has sheltered four generations of this family, and with its substantial foundation and thorough construction bids fair to remain many years to come, one of the ancient landmarks to which the coming generations may look upon the early cares and strifes of the pioneers of the town. Mrs. Eastman through life was a great worker and held in high esteem by her many friends. On Sept. 2, 1832, she became a member of the Congregational church under its first settled pastor, Rev. Valentine Little.

H., April 27, 1867; married March 3, 1802, Nathaniel Rix, born in Landaff, N. H., Nov. 26, 1777, died in Dalton, N. H., Oct. 21, 1857. They were buried in the burial grounds in North Littleton, N. H. Mr. Rix went to Stanstead, Can., with his parents in 1799, and in 1802 returned to Bath, married there, and took his bride to Canada. While in Canada he had command of a militia regiment, and when the war broke out in 1812, he, not having taken the oath of allegiance to King George, refused to command the regiment. This was the regiment that was so fearfully cut up by "Yankee Miller" at Lundy's Lane. Mr. Rix, in consequence of the war, left Canada and returned to the States, to Lyman, N. H., where he remained about one year, when he removed to Littleton, N. H., where he purchased a tract of land in North Littleton, built, and settled there. He was employed in public affairs for many years. He represented the town in the New Hampshire legislature for the years of 1821 to 1827, inclusive. He was counsellor under Governor Dinsmore's administration in 1832-3. Mr. Rix was related to Governor Dinsmore through his mother, Elizabeth Searle, whose mother was a sister of the governor's father. Mr. Rix was one of a committee to build the north extension of the old state prison in Concord. He was an early advocate of total abstinence; register of deeds of Grafton county from 1835 to 1840, during which time he removed to Haverhill, the county seat, and between 1840 and 1850, represented Haverhill in the state legislature. He was Worshipful Master of Morning Lodge, No. 43, F. A. M., located at Waterford, Vt., in 1820-21. He never entered a lodge after the "Morgan" affair, in 1826. His picture hangs on the walls of his old lodge, located in Littleton, N. H., under the old charter. His father, Nathaniel Rix, sen., was a Revolutionary soldier, and his grandfather, Nathaniel, was a Colonial soldier in 1745. On the books of the lodge in Waterford is a record of Nathaniel Rix as a visitor, and as there was no other Nathaniel Rix, sen., he must have been the father of Nathaniel Rix, of Littleton, though no record of his being a Mason can be found on the records of Stanstead Lodge, they being lost through the Morgan excitement in 1826.

TO THE P. W. A.

BY EMMA LEORA KELLOGG.

When a child I stood by the river side
And threw pebbles into the stream,
While I watched the circles spread far and wide,
Till they touched the far shore, oh, joy supreme;
And the thought is so sweet to me to-day,
The thought of that time and my childhood's play.

But a sweeter thought has come to me,
'Tis the thought of a circle of circles, our own,
Spreading far and wide from sea to sea,
From the sunny land to the frozen zone,
A circles of circles like links in a chain,
That calls for the best work of heart and brain;

Filling our souls with a noble desire
For self-improvement, that we may rise
By stepping-stones, yet higher and higher
To loftier heights and fairer skies;
Gathering sheaves as we pass on our way,
Freely bestowing them where'er we stray.

There are many ways to do good unto all —
Encouragement oft is more helpful than gold —
In sharing their burdens, great or small,
Forming true friendships that will ne'er grow cold,
While hands clasp hands in the kindest way
And hearts are loving and true for aye.

May this be our aim, as we journey along,
To keep our lights burning like beacons so bright,
That the sad will rejoice and will sing a glad song,
And the lonely and weary come into the light;
Giving our aid unto all who come near,
Filling their souls with glad hope and good cheer.

And when the redeemed gather round God's throne
On the earth made new and fair,
In the beautiful city where sin is unknown —
For Jesus our Savior reigns there —
May our circle be found, an unbroken band,
And dwell ever more in that beautiful land.

607a. Elvira B. Eastman⁶ (Moses⁵, William⁴, Jonathan³, Thomas², Roger¹), born July 17, 1812; died Oct. 17, 1869; married Dr. John Russell and lived in Methuen, Mass.

- iv. Loella Russell⁷, b. in Methuen, Mass., July 4, 1848; m. in Methuen, Mass., Nov. 18, 1868, Warren Leonard Teele, born in East Cambridge, Mass., 1844, son of Jonathan William and Emeline (Learned) Teele. Mr. Teele enlisted in Sept., 1861, in Company E, Twenty-sixth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry; mustered in Oct. 18, 1861; re-enlisted Jan., 1864, in the same company and regiment, Massachusetts Veteran Infantry; was wounded Sept. 19, 1864, at Winchester, Va.; mustered out of service, Oct. 22, 1865, at the close of the war, from U. S. General Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa. He is a member of the West Somerville Baptist church and has held every elective position in the church; he resides at No. 33 Curtis street. Children: (a) Fred Warren Teele⁸, b. in West Somerville, Mass., Dec. 5, 1869; married July 18, 1894, Alice May Robertson. Mr. Teele was born in the old Teele house, at the corner of Broadway and Curtis streets; his ancestors on his father's side were among the early settlers of Boston, two brothers, Jonathan and Amos Teel, coming from England in 1634. Later they lived in what is now Somerville, and in 1644 leased a large tract of land from the crown, which the family afterwards bought outright in 1684. Part of this land, including the Teele homestead, where Mr. Teele was born, has been held in the family ever since, as the records at East Cambridge will show. This is probably the longest that any estate in this country has been held in the same family. Mr. Teele attended the old Lincoln school on Elm street, and afterwards the Highland school, where he was graduated in 1884. After graduating from the Somerville high school in 1888, he took the electrical engineering course at Tufts College, graduating in 1891. Mr. Teele has worked himself up through all the different stages of electrical engineering, including that of steam, so that to-day he is chief engineer of the largest electrical power plant in the world, located in Boston, Mass. He is an honorary member of the Tufts College and Harvard College engineering societies; a member of the National Association of Stationary Engineers; secretary and treasurer of the street railway club; president of the New England alumni of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity; president of the Young Men's League of West Somerville; and a member of Caleb Rand Lodge of Odd Fellows, John Abbot Lodge of Masons and St. Aldemar Commandery, Knights of Malta. He married July 18, 1894, Miss Alice May Robertson; they have one child, (1) Kenneth Robertson Teele⁹, b. in West Somerville, Mass., Sept. 24, 1895. He resides at No. 37 Electric ave., West Somerville, Mass.; (b) Adeline Carrie Teele⁸, b. Nov. 13, 1871; (c) Alice Ida Teele⁸, b. Aug. 10, 1881.

When he was three years of age his father died, leaving his mother a widow with five children. When seven he saw one of his playmates drowned, and long after would not let his own children play at the river. In 1806, his mother sold the place and married Josiah Cowles and removed to Leverett. Jonathan was early apprenticed to a shoemaker, but disliked the trade and was bound out to Silas Ball, of Townsend, Vt., and when twenty-one took a certificate that he had learned the carpenter's and joiner's trade. He worked, his first three years in Westfield, Mass., and joined a military company, the only one thereabouts not ordered to Boston in 1814. He worked one season in Pompy, N. Y., and visited Niagara Falls and the battle-field of Lundy's Lane. He settled in Hadley about 1820, and bought, for two hundred and forty dollars, of his father-in-law, two and one-half acres in Hadley and built him a one and a half story house, and married the next year. He was an exemplary member of the church for many years.

639. Daniel Ward Eastman⁶ (Tilton⁵, Peter⁴, Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born in Goshen Township, Orange county, N. Y., Sept. 2, 1778; died Aug. 4, 1856, and was buried in St. Ann's, Gainsboro, Lincoln county, Ontario, where a beautiful monument commemorates the historic fact that he was the father of the Presbyterian churches of the Niagara and Gore districts, and that he served his Master faithfully and with eminent success for more than half a century. He married 1st, Nov. 21, 1800, Elizabeth Hopkins, daughter of Capt. Silas Hopkins of the British service, then living in Newark, N. J.; she died Oct. 9, 1844. He married 2d a widow Lowe, who died about 1856, when he married 3d a widow Hinton, who died Jan. 22, 1879. Mr. Eastman was converted when fourteen years old; attended North Salem Seminary; studied theology with the Rev. Mr. Lewis, of North Stamford, Conn., and later with Dr. Benedict, of New Jersey. He was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Morristown, N. J., March 18, 1800; preached at Elizabethtown, Amity and Warwick. The oldest manuscript sermon of his extant bears date of Sept. 23, 1800. In May, 1801, Mr. Eastman started with a company of friends under the leadership of Captain Hopkins, his father-in-law, for Canada West. After about four weeks' journey across the state of New York, they crossed the Niagara river to St. Catharines, where Mr. Eastman preached his first sermon in Canada, the first Sunday in July, 1801. At that time there were, besides him, only two Presbyterian ministers in all Upper Canada, Mr. Bethune at Williamstown, Glenary, and M. McDowell, Bay of Quinte. Mr. Eastman first settled in Stamford and in June, 1802, moved on to a fifty acre farm of his own, near Beaver Dam, and soon after was ordained by the Presbytery, of Canandaigua, at Palmyra, N. Y., and soon after was authorized to solemnize marriages, and during the thirty years next ensuing, he married about three thousand couples. At that time no other clergyman, except Mr. Addison of Niagara, a Church of England minister, was authorized to perform the marriage ceremony in the Niagara district. Between 1802 and 1815, Mr. Eastman founded and mostly supplied the churches at Louth, Clinton, Gainsboro, Grimsby, Wellandport and Vienna, subsequently known as Mr. Eastman's seven churches. His labors, however, were not confined to these seven points, for he preached all over the Niagara peninsula from the Niagara river to beyond where Hamilton now stands. In 1815, Mr. Eastman moved to Barton, where he lived four years, and preached as far west as London and Long Point, as well as eastward to Louth and Stamford, traveling sometimes fifty miles to an appointment. During the war of 1812-14, Mr. Eastman was living at Beaver Dam. Most of the peninsular battles were fought near his home, and in the skirmish of Beaver Dam, his house was pierced by so many bullets that the family was compelled to take refuge in the cellar. On that occasion an Indian ally of the American forces decamped with the minister's horse, but was compelled by the American commander to restore him. Mr. Eastman was a member of the first Presbytery, of York, about 1820; it was short lived, soon expiring, but was revived about 1830, when he again became a member, but owing to differences between the old country members and the American Presbyterians, respecting the Westminster confession and Psalmody, he withdrew from all connection in 1833, and in May of that year assisted in the organization of the Niagara Presbytery of Upper Canada, which went to pieces in the McKenzie rebellion of 1836-7, many of the American members then leaving the country. In 1840, Mr. Eastman went onto the synod of the Presbyterian church in Canada in connection with the church of Scotland, and after its disruption in 1844, he entered the Free church, and with his relations continued till the end of his ministry. In the latter part of his ministry, he was greatly assisted by his son, William Osgood, who frequently filled his appointments, especially after his eyesight began to fail him. This calamity began to threaten him about 1840, but he continued to preach till about 1850, when increasing blindness compelled him to desist from regular labor and about 1856 became totally blind. To one of his active energetic habits and temperament, blindness was especially afflicting. It was a trial to which he found it hard to become reconciled, but he won the victory at last and was able to say, "Thy will be done." Mr. Eastman's first wife was the mother of ten children and she lived to see them all married and settled. The second wife was a most intelligent, amiable, and excellent woman, whose companionship and sympathy went far to render Mr. Eastman's blindness tolerable. She died of quick consumption. His third wife, also, was a most estimable woman; though possessed of less education and refinement than the other wives, she proved a faithful and affectionate wife and her kindness and fidelity to Mr. Eastman commanded the respect of even those members of his family who opposed his third marriage. Rev. Mr. Eastman had a paralytic stroke about 1865, by which he was for a time completely deprived of the power of speech, having lost the memory of words, but regained language in about three months under the patient training of his daughter, Mrs. E. G. Emerson, of Rochester, N. Y., but his mind was never so vigorous as before. He died of apoplexy.

650. Morgan Lewis Eastman⁶ (Abihue⁵, Benjamin⁴, Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born in Fairfield, N. Y., Nov. 11, 1814. Another record given the compiler says he was born in Little Falls, N. Y., Nov. 16. He married Emeline Thorpe. Mr. Eastman has been for forty years a preacher in the Congregational church, having but two settlements, one in Lisbon, N. Y., and one in Royalton, Wis. His present church was founded by leading members of his former charge in Lisbon, N. Y. Mr. Eastman was an entirely self-educated man, had but six months' schooling in all his life, but became a man of far-reaching influence. While in Lisbon for twenty-one years and while pastor there, he did evangelistic work in twenty-five different churches in St. Lawrence and Jefferson counties, New York. In 1869, he removed to Royalton, Wis., where he did evangelistic work in fourteen different churches in the state. Mrs. Eastman's father was among the pioneer Dutch settlers of New York state. She was a woman of rare ability, her sphere being the home, where she reigned queen for nearly fifty years. He died Oct. 1, 1900.

About 1829, Mr. Eastman removed with his parents to Oswegatchie, St. Lawrence county, N. Y. He married June 9, 1852, Loraine Waring, born in 1823, died in 1889. Mr. Eastman studied law and went into practice in New York City, when, disliking the profession on account of the confinement, abandoned it, and went into mercantile business, in which he lost everything. He then took up civil engineering and surveying, in which business he made a success. In 1855, he removed to Elkhorn, Wis. He was a man of gigantic intellect, not, however, supported by a cool disposition, but endued with great kindness of heart.

Mr. Eastman removed to Rodman with his parents when he was eleven years of age. He always resided in Rodman after he went there. He was a very highly esteemed citizen, and made friends with whom he came in contact. He accumulated a good property, lived an industrious and useful life, reared his family in the way they should go, held the universal esteem of his fellow townsmen for his many acts of kindness to them, in accommodations in times of trouble, and general benevolence to the poor and destitute. He did not wait until his death and his children were old before assisting them, but distributed his patrimony with a just and even hand as they grew up and went for themselves or were married off, and the most beautiful and touching scenes of his life, reminding one of some ancient patriarch, was his going from home to home and spending weeks and months alternating between his sons and daughters, where he was ever received with open arms and loving hearts.

Y., July 31, 1865, daughter of Jared and Elizabeth (Lusk) Chittenden, of Guilford, Conn., and Westmoreland, N. Y. Dr. Eastman was a well educated man, but where he studied medicine or with whom it is impossible at this late day to determine, but it is evident he received an academic education, as his granddaughter, Mrs. A. P. Sigourney, of Watertown, N. Y., distinctly remembers of seeing his diploma. Immediately after his marriage he settled in Adams, N. Y., where he practiced his chosen profession as long as he lived. It is thought he was the first physician permanently settled in that town. There is a tradition about a Dr. Green previous to that time, but how long he stayed, or where he came from, or where he went to is not known. Dr. Eastman was highly esteemed, had an extensive practice, and so much were his professional services sought after, that for the two or three years previous to his death, after he was unable to drive himself, people from the surrounding country having severe cases of sickness in their families came in their carriages and took him to their homes where they kept him until the result was known. He was a surgeon in the war of 1812-14, was at the battle of Sackett's Harbor.

676. Hezekiah Wellman⁶ (Phebe Eastman⁵, Joseph⁴, Peter³, Joseph², Roger¹), born in New Fairfield, Conn., March 25, 1789; died Sept. 15, 1865; married 1st, in the fall of 1811, Martha Wakeman, born in New Fairfield in 1793, daughter of Jeremiah and Phebe (Hendrick) Wakeman. Martha was of the seventh generation in this country. She died Feb. 22, 1819, and in the fall of the same year he married 2d, Lossey Maria Watkins, daughter of Abijah Watkins, of Monroe, Conn. She was born in Monroe in 1801, and died in New Fairfield, Jan. 4, 1889, aged 88 years. Hezekiah was bound out until he was twenty-one years of age, to William Leach, of the town now known as Sherman. Here Hezekiah stayed his full time, and perhaps more, as it is said Mr. Leach fooled the boy out of one year's time by pretending he was born in 1790. Hezekiah was a fine singer in his day, and led the singing in the church in New Fairfield many years. He and his wife were both members of the Methodist church in New Fairfield, where he was a class leader. He was a farmer, and lived at first on the farm called the "David Wakeman" place, which place was the last on the road leading to Ball's pond from the part called "The Bogs." His wife's father lived on the next farm above, and this farm came into possession of Hezekiah through his wife. Later he bought the lower farm (where he lived first), so eventually owned them both. Hezekiah was drafted into the army in 1812, and assigned to Capt. Charles Parks' company, and was stationed at Bridgeport, Conn. Time in service from July 14 to Sept. 9, 1814. He received at one time forty acres of land, and at another time one hundred and twenty acres, making one hundred and sixty in all, for his services in the war of 1812-14.

714. Anna Quackenbush Eastman⁷ (Ira Allen⁶, Stephen⁵, Ebenezer⁴, Samuel³, Samuel², Roger¹), born Jan., 1836; married in Oct., 1858, Judge David Cross, born in Weare,

N. H., July 5, 1817, son of David and Olive (Kimball) Cross. Olive was the daughter of Thomas⁶, Thomas⁵, Daniel⁴, Thomas³, Richard², Richard¹, the emigrant. Judge Cross is a descendant of Thomas Cross, of Bradford, Mass., whose son, Abial Cross, was born there, but moved to and died in Salem, N. H. David Cross, son of Abial, and father of Judge Cross, was born in Salem, June 19, 1772, moved to Weare, N. H., and died there March 7, 1856. Judge Cross received his early education in the district schools of his native town. He taught school in 1834, and entered Pembroke Academy. He afterwards entered Hopkinton Academy. He was also a student at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in the fall of 1837 entered Dartmouth College, from which institution he was graduated in the regular course in 1841, with membership in the Phi Beta Kappa, and with an oration at commencement. Deciding on the profession of the law, he studied in the office of Willard & Raymond, in Troy, N. Y., with Sidney Bartlett, in Boston, and at the Harvard Law School, and in 1844, settled in Manchester, N. H. He was in the office of Hon. Daniel Clark for a short time, and in December of the same year he was admitted to the bar. In January, 1845, he began practice in Manchester, on the spot where he has ever since maintained an office. Judge Cross has been counsel for many corporations, among which are the following: Manchester Mills, Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, Amory Manufacturing Company, First National Bank, and the Merrimack River Savings Bank. For many years he was counsel for the Boston & Maine Railroad, and conducted its business before the New Hampshire legislature, where contests with other railroads were numerous and bitterly fought. He has been associated with, as partners at various times, Hon. Elijah M. Topliff, Hon. Ira Allen Eastman, his father in law, Hon. Henry E. Burnham, and Hon. David A. Taggart, and no office in the state for the last forty years has had so many law students as his. In 1852 and 1853 he was city solicitor, and in 1848-49-56-76 and 77, he was a member of the legislature from Manchester. In 1856 he was appointed judge of probate for Hillsborough County, which office he held until 1874. He was also United States pension agent for the district of New Hampshire from 1865 to 1872. During all the time he held these offices he continued in the practice of law. Judge Cross has held various offices in the financial institutions of the city. He has been one of the directors and vice-president of the First National Bank of Manchester since its organization in 1865, and later its president. Judge Cross is endowed with a sound physical constitution, strong and active mental powers, good judgment, and excellent common-sense. Add to these a cheerful temper, a cordial and engaging manner, and a genial good nature, and we have the secret of his success. In politics he has always been an ardent Republican, and was a delegate to the Baltimore convention of 1864 that nominated Lincoln and Johnson. Judge Cross is living to-day (1900), a rugged old gentleman of the old school.

CHILDREN.

- i. Clarence Eastman Cross^s, b. Jan. 22, 1860; d. Jan. 11, 1881. He was a member of the junior class in Dartmouth College, and a young man of much promise. 715. Charlotte Augusta Burns Eastman⁶ (Samuel Conner⁵, Ebenezer⁴, Samuel³, Samuel², Roger¹), born in Gilman-ton, N. H., — ; died in Somerville, Mass., in 1891, with her son. She married in 1852, Simon Blake, born in Bar- ington, N. H., July 11, 1824, died in Tilton, N. H., March 26, 1876. Mr. Blake settled first in Pittsfield, N. H. Owned and drove the stage line from Concord to Dover, N. H. About 1850 he sold out the Dover branch to Samuel Freeze, and in 1852 sold out entirely and removed to New York city, where he was superintendent of the horse car stables for the Fifth Avenue horse railroad, where he remained one year, when he removed to Worcester, Mass. Here he remained one year, when he went to Boston and drove stage about three years, when he entered the police force, where he remained until 1871, when he accepted the position of station agent at Tilton, N. H., which position he held at his death.

Corban Curtice, born in Windsor, Mass., Feb. 9, 1809. She was his third wife. At the age of twenty-one, having gone to the vicinity of Boston, he was stricken with paralysis in the lower limbs, resulting in a lameness through all his life. He then added to a good common school education a four years' course at the Hancock Academy, where the grace of God took possession of his heart. He then taught one year at Nelson, as also for ten consecutive years, or winters rather, and was three years at the Gilmanton Theological Seminary. He commenced his long and useful pastorate of twenty-seven years, over the Congregational church of Northfield and Sanbornton Bridge, N. H., May 1, 1843, being ordained the October following. He retired in 1870. He was ever faithful and impartial in his visits as a pastor, and sound and universally popular as a preacher, while in his retirement he exhibits a cheerful exemplification of the Christian life under all its infirmities and trials. He had one child by his second wife, who died young.

H., March 16, 1826; died in Merrittstown, Pa., July 13, 1894; married in Merrittstown, Nov., 1853, Mary Elizabeth Porter, born in Merrittstown, Pa., Nov. 6, 1836. She lives there. Mr. Eastman settled in Fayette county, Pa., in 1847; was taken sick soon after, and when he recovered was without money or friends, and single-handed he began the battle of life. Locating at Merrittstown, Fayette county, he continued to make it his home until his death. He was an M. D., and his practice extended over a vast territory. During his lifetime he accumulated quite an estate, educated his children, and left each of them a competency. Dr. Eastman was a synonym for honesty, integrity and purity.

TIMOTHY EASTMAN (729).

729. Timothy Eastman⁶ (Timothy⁵, Joseph⁴, Joseph³, Samuel², Roger¹), born in East Kingston, N. H., Jan. 17, 1798 ; died in Chicago, Ill., Feb. 21, 1868 ; married 1st, Oct. 18, 1825, Mary Jane Barker, born July 8, 1809, died April 7, 1853 ; married 2d, Sept. 14, 1859, her sister, widow Sophia Barker Reed, who died Feb. 24, 1870. He sold his interest in the Green Brook farm in East Kingston in 1826, which was to be divided between him and his sister Susan and her husband, Moses Morse. The same year he removed to Canaan, Me., taking his parents with him. In 1831 he removed the family to Harmony, Me., where his parents both died. Dr. Timothy Eastman studied medicine with Prof. Ingalls, of Boston, Mass., and graduated in 1822, and began practice at Canaan, Me. In 1835 he removed to Ottawa county, Mich., where he established the town of Polktown, afterwards changed to Eastmanville. The country was then a wilderness, the modes of conveyance primitive. He went as far as Buffalo by the Erie Canal, then but completed, thence by sailing vessel to Detroit, and the balance of the way by stage and birch-bark canoes. His family was the second white family to settle there. He was the first clerk of Ottawa county, and for several years associate judge of the circuit. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1850, and from time to time filled many important official positions. His colloquial powers were unsurpassed, and meet him wherever you would, he was always the center of attraction, owing to his richly stored mind, and the happy faculty which he possessed of interesting others and expressing himself. In 1858 he prepared a genealogical chart of the Eastman family, which was revised in 1894, and which has been a great help in the present work. It was a source of regret that he could not make it more complete. Dr. Eastman spent the last years of his life in Chicago, where some of his children resided.

733. Timothy Corser Eastman⁶ (Joseph⁵, Benjamin⁴, Joseph³, Samuel², Roger¹), born in Croydon, N. H., May 30, 1821; died suddenly at his fine country seat in Tarrytown, N. Y., in Oct., 1893; married Lucy Putney, and had several children. His mother was of strong will, and determined to have her family brought up respectably, but to do this constant toil was necessary, and the older children were forced to work instead of attending school. But their education was not wholly neglected, for their mother taught a family fireside school in the long winter evenings, so that her children started out in the world with an average school education. Timothy learned the carpenter's trade of his father, but eager to push on and win the race in life he taught school for a time, saving money to carry him through the High School at Meriden, N. H., where it is remembered he became a master on "figures." It was there he received his final outfit for the work he finally had to do, where his accuracy as his own accountant for many years, and his ability, became a marvel to those who dealt with him in his great and ever-growing business. He was able to buy a farm at the age of twenty-one, but New Hampshire was too small for him, and he soon moved to Wisconsin, returned home, and in a short time removed to Ohio and settled near Cleveland, where he found a dairy farm much to his liking, rented it, and sent the milk to that city with a trusty man to vend. He carried on the milk business for some years, and was very successful. Starting with fourteen cows, he soon owned one hundred and twenty-five. In buying and selling for his milk business, he found his way to another of greater moment, to which he gave the last forty years of his life. Mr. Eastman had a marvellous gift in judging cattle. He had few equals and no masters in his ability to tell the weight and worth of the endless herds which came under his eye. He began by bringing cattle in the earlier years from Ohio and Kentucky, and sending them to Albany, but the business grew on his hands and he found it was necessary to move to New York. He removed there in 1859, and laid the foundation of the "Eastman Company," of which he was always the head. In 1875, he made up his mind, by careful judgment and thought, that fresh meat could be shipped to England in perfect condition, and there find a good market. Mr. Eastman saw his opportunity. His old colleagues in the trade said he could never carry out his plans, and were sure that the enterprise would wreck him. He was just as sure it could be done, and was ready to run the risk. He therefore undertook it at a great cost in money, but his courage and wisdom were rewarded, and Mr. Eastman's name must always stand as the first man who shipped fresh beef to England. In the latter years of his life he returned to the home of his youth in Croydon, bought some land near the river and built another home there, where he, with his family about him, and his horses, passed many happy days. He was probably the most wealthy man New Hampshire ever produced.

734. Samuel Eastman⁶ (Benjamin⁵, Samuel⁴, Ebenezer³, Samuel², Roger¹), born in Mt. Vernon, Me., Oct. 27, 1784; died in Strong, Me., Jan. 20, 1864; married March 22, 1807, Jane Hitchcock, born Sept. 29, 1786, died in Strong, Me., July 10, 1865. Mr. Eastman resided in Strong, Me., where he was a local justice of some note. He was at one time a state senator, and a captain in the militia.

740. Benjamin Franklin Eastman⁶ (Benjamin⁵, Samuel⁴, Ebenezer³, Samuel², Roger¹), born in Mt. Vernon, Me., Nov. 15, 1800 ; died in Portland, Me., Feb. 10, 1894 ; married March 4, 1826, Eliza Dyer, born in Malden, Mass., Feb. 14, 1806, died Jan. 5, 1874. Colonel Eastman removed with his parents to Phillips, Me., when a mere boy, where he grew up to manhood, and then opened a store in Strong, Me., where he was in business a dozen years. He got his title from his rank in a state militia regiment. He was active in politics, and was one of the Republican party in Maine, in connection with Blaine, Hamlin, and others. He represented Franklin county in the state senate, being a member of that body with Hannibal Hamlin, with whom he maintained a life-long friendship. Colonel Eastman moved back to Phillips after a time, and lived on a farm there. Then he again went to Strong and resided until he went to Portland to live with his children. Colonel Eastman was a man universally esteemed. He possessed fine traits of character, which always won for him the confidence and esteem of his fellow-citizens. Many were the calls upon him for information concerning the politics of the state half a century ago, and he was never at fault as to his statements. "A good man rounded out a long life, and left us like one who has simply dropped to sleep."

H. Mr. Eastman resided in Dorchester till the spring of 1854; was chosen representative of that town in the New Hampshire legislature two years, 1850-51, when he removed to Bethlehem, N. H., and was town clerk of that town for a number of years. He was a man of unusual intelligence, spending much of his time in reading during the latter portion of his life. It is doubtful if any man in the state, of his walk in life, was better posted in matters of history or politics. He was a deep thinker, a ready, forcible writer, and although his modest and retiring disposition prevented frequent efforts in that direction, some of his published articles attracted the attention and commendation of the best politicians in the state. He was regarded one of the foremost citizens of Bethlehem, winning a host of friends, who showed their high estimation of his character by their large concourse at his funeral, notwithstanding the almost impassable condition of the roads, at which an able discourse was preached by Rev. G. L. Demorest, of Manchester.

779. Arthur Benjamin Calef⁶ (Sally Eastman⁵, Ebenezer⁴, Thomas³, Samuel², Roger¹), born in Northfield, N. H., June 30, 1825 ; married March 21, 1853, Hannah F. Woodman. Mr. Calef was a descendant of Robert Calef, who came to Boston, Mass., some time previous to 1688, and later became conspicuous through a controversy with Cotton and Increase Mather, in which he emphatically denounced their witchcraft theories. Through his father, Judge Calef was connected with General Warren, who was killed at the battle of Bunker Hill. Judge Calef worked on his father's farm until he was fifteen years old, and attended the district schools of the neighborhood. In 1840 he attended Sanbornton Academy, Sanbornton, N. H., and in the fall of 1841 and spring of 1842 Gilmanton Academy, Gilmanton, N. H. From 1843 to 1846 he taught school. He entered Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., in 1847, and graduated from that institution in the class of 1851. The same year he began the study of law in Middletown, teaching classes in the high school during the time. From 1853 to 1861 he served as clerk of the courts of Middlesex county, Conn., in the meantime building up a good law practice. He was elected to the Middletown common council in 1854, and again in 1855 was elected treasurer of the state of Connecticut, when only twenty-nine years of age, and was chosen city attorney of Middletown in 1858. With him originated the system of bipartisan registrars of elections. He was a delegate to the National Republican conventions of 1860 and 1864, postmaster of Middletown from 1861 to 1869, a member of the board of aldermen in 1875, and judge of the city court from 1884 to 1895, when he retired through age limitation. Judge Calef was the senior member of the Middlesex county bar, and the oldest survivor who has held the office of postmaster there, or clerk of the superior court. He was also the oldest surviving state treasurer of Connecticut. He founded the ARTHUR B. CALEF (779).

Calef Oratorical Prize in Wesleyan University in 1862, was president of the Alumni Association of Wesleyan University from 1862 to 1866, was trustee of that institution from 1862 to 1880, and lecturer on constitutional law in Wesleyan University in 1878. Judge Calef had a large practice in the state and United States courts. Aside from his law business he was for some years president of the Middletown Gaslight Company, and a director in several financial institutions. He was a well-known Mason, having served as grand junior warden of the grand lodge of the state of Connecticut. In Middletown, where Judge Calef resided and spent so many years of his life, he held the respect of its citizens for the many sterling qualities that mark an upright man. He was a credit to himself and an honor to the institutions with which he was connected. Having practically retired from legal business, he accepted at the earnest solicitation of friends the position of referee of bankruptcy under the new United States bankruptcy law. Judge Calef took a great deal of interest in the genealogy of the Eastman family, and spent a good deal of time and money in searching records, especially the old land and probate records at Exeter. Among the probate records was found the will of Thomas Eastman, whose wife was Abigail French, which establishes beyond a doubt his line of ancestry. He died Aug. 17, 1900.
